FAIR Enough

Roosevelt
Doesn't Pay
Income Tax

By Westbrook
Pegler

NEW YORK. — Mr. Roosevelt's indignation over tax evasions would be more impressive if he had always had to pay both the federal and New York state taxes like other citizens of New York and if he had not always enjoyed from the beginning of the federal tax to the present time the special privilege of an influential politician.

As governor of New York for four years he was exempt from the federal tax on a large salary and as President for the last four years and a bit of a salary of $75,000 a year plus free rent of a nice house, he has been exempt from the state tax, although he is legally a citizen of the state and receives rather special service from the state government.

PRIVILEGED PERSON

Of course the saving in dollars and cents may be immaterial to a consecrated man, but in that case the sacrifice would be immaterial, too, and the fact remains that he is in the habit of paying one tax where his fellow citizens pay two.

But beyond that point Mr. Roosevelt, as governor and as President has belonged to that group of privileged individuals who do not have to submit to the eavesdropping and spot checking, the prying into individual personal affairs and accounts, which are none of the government's business that he now bespeaks for ordinary individuals.

To be sure, there is no legal provision that the President shall be immune from the annual review of his items, but nobody can

HOUSE BALKS TAX PROBE

WASHINGTON. (AP)—An objection by Representative Mervin (D., Tex.) blocked today an attempt to obtain immediate consideration of an administration resolution to create a house-senate committee to investigate tax evasions and avoidances.

"I'm tired," he shouted, "of people coming up here and giving me some mysterious reason why I should do something. I want to know the real reason."

Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the ways and means committee had sought a unanimous agreement to bring the measure before the chamber.

The senate approved it yesterday soon after President Roosevelt asked congress to stop the "evil practices" of tax dodging by the wealthy.

The resolution now will be referred to the rules committee, which must approve it before it can come up on the floor.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.

BY BOB BURNS

They say when there's a lot'a building going on, it's a sign of good times. If that's the case I suppose things are in pretty good shape out here now. I declare they are. buildin' houses so fast out here the families are movin' in on the first load of lumber. Of course they throw these California bungalows up pretty fast. All they're made of is tar paper, chicken wire and chalk. But I want to tell you, the bungalows ain't o be sneezed at! You don't dare sneeze at some of 'em.

The other night I was havin' dinner with a friend who lives in a new duplex and I heard a scratchin' sound that sounded like it was comin' out of the wall. I says "You don't mean to tell me you got rats in this place already?" My friend listened a while and he says "No, that's the neighbors next door eatin' celery."

He's Hero To Duke, Wally

MONTS. France. (AP)—A fighting North England parson, braving the opposition of the Church of England, will give the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield his religious blessing at their wedding tomorrow.

The middle-aged "Labor" preacher, the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar of St. Paul's church, Darlington, Eng., will perform the religious ceremony after the civil service is read in the Chateau de Candie music room by Mayor Charles Mercier of Monts.

It came about this way: Edward was called to the telephone last night, after all hope for the desired religious consecration of his marriage had been given up.

An unfamiliar voice said firmly: "I am coming down to marry you."

It was the small town vicar, the Rev. Mr. Jardine, known for his work among the laboring class.

The preacher gave his former monarch no opportunity to protest. "I am coming," he insisted.

Couple Overjoyed

Today he taxied to Candie and bowed to the Duke.

"I prefer to die rather than see my king married outside the church," proclaimed the Rev. Mr. Jardine.

Windsor and Mrs. Warfield were said to have been overjoyed. Both were represented as having been extremely disappointed over the impossibility of finding a clergyman to marry them, because the Anglican church frowns upon remarriage by divorced persons, and

AMELIA LANDS IN VENEZUELA

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Pan-American Airways reported that Amelia Earhart landed at Caripito, Venezuela, at 10:18 a. m. today after a flight from San Juan, Puerto Rico. It was expected that she and her navigator, Capt. Fred J. Noonan, would remain overnight in the Standard Oil Company's guest house there and take off tomorrow for Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana. From there she probably would proceed to Natal by way of Para, Brazil.

The aviatrix is flying around the world as near the equator as practicable, making the 28,000-mile journey for pleasure.

C. A. Palmer Hurt In Car-Truck Crash

C. A. Palmer, secretary of the Orange county National Farm Loan association and the Orange county water district, and a prominent citrus grower, was confined to his home today with painful injuries incurred in an auto-truck crash yesterday afternoon.

Palmer said his car was struck at Katella and Haster roads by a truck driven by E. R. Fleischmann of Long Beach. The Palmer car was badly damaged. Both car and truck overturned.

S. A. to Have New Street Superintendent OFFICIAL TO BEGIN WORK ON JULY 1

City Engineer to Be Relieved of Much
Detail Work

Santa Ana will have a new street superintendent on July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

The city council has not yet decided who the man will be for the job.

Hugh Neighbour, present assistant city engineer, will become water and sewer superintendent on July 1, and not on June 1 as has been erroneously reported in another newspaper.

Plan Reorganization

Considerable reorganization of the city engineer's department and the water department of the city is planned by the city officials.

This is being done mainly to relieve City Engineer J. L. McBride of the tremendous amount of supervisory work he has had in the past.

It was pointed out that McBride has carried the responsibility for the street department, engineering department, water department, sewer department and city parks until a year ago, acted as maintenance engineer for the joint outfall sewer, has been in charge of garbage and rubbish collections, pest and weed control work, in charge of WPA and PWA projects here, and has acted as coordinator of state highway work in the city between the state highway department and the city.

New Water Mains

It is understood that the city officials want McBride to have more time to devote to actual city engineering details, rather than supervising so many departments. He will be relieved of the water, sewer and street superintendencies.

The city of Santa Ana now has 9500 water taps, and the mere job of seeing that meters are read, collections and adjustments made in the water system work will be a big job, it was pointed out. The city also is laying about 1000 feet of new water mains each month, and this entails considerable supervision.

Several changes are planned in the city water works, it was learned. A new system to file all repair and replacement parts used in the water system work will be inaugurated. Special steel filing cases will be constructed in which to place the parts, and a stock man will be employed to keep track of the equipment.

VAN DEVANTER NOW FARMER

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Justice Willis Van Devanter exchanged today his busy 26-year career as a member of the supreme court for that of a gentleman farmer.

His colleagues in a letter expressed "high esteem and warm affection" and "a poignant sense of regret" at his voluntary retirement.

In reply, Van Devanter said he would carry happy memories of the association "together with profound respects and true affection" for each of those remaining.

The 78-year-old justice attended his final session of the court yesterday, when the tribunal adjourned until next October. His retirement marks the first change in its membership since Benjamin N. Cardozo was appointed a justice to succeed 91-year-old Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Three Million in County Treasury

Orange county has $3,730,646.07 in its treasury, it was reported today after the monthly count conducted by Treasurer T. E. Stephenson, District Attorney W. F. Men-ton and Auditor W. T. Lambert.

Of the sum $1,083,683.48 was in checking account balances, and most of the remainder was on deposit at interest in Orange county banks.

Germans, Italians Confer on Spain

ROME. (AP)—German and Italian war chiefs discussed military cooperation in Spain today as Italian men-of-war, acting independently of the neutrality committee and threatening force if necessary, established a virtual blockade of eastern Spain. Two significant developments marked the joint policies of Rome and Berlin against what they deem the Communist influence of Soviet Russia over the Madrid-Valencia government of Spain's republic.

1. Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German minister of war, arrived by plane and immediately engaged in long conversations with Premier Benito Mussolini who also heads Italy's armed forces. They were believed to have laid the foundations for close cooperation between their forces and to have strengthened their unity of purpose in Spain. A decision for diplo-matic intervention, however, was regarded as a distant possibility.

2. The Italian fleet was ordered to act independently to prevent Russian merchantmen from delivering war contraband to Spanish government-held ports. The Italian warships remained off the government-held stretches of the Spanish coast they had patrolled in the international neutrality fleet until Il Duce withdrew from that plan. Under it, they collaborated with other powers in supervising an international embargo and were enjoined from firing. Now, under strictly Italian orders, they are

STEEL STRIKE WEEK OLD

No Progress Made for Peace; Violence at Jersey Laundry

By the Associated Press

The steel strike became a week old today with no indications of substantial progress toward returning its 70,000 idle workers in seven states to the mills.

While pickets marched and the still operating Republic corporation said arms and munitions were stored to protect its "property and workmen," outbreaks of trouble occurred in other labor sectors.

Fifteen persons were injured in a clash between strikers and pickets at a Little Falls, N. J., laundry. The authorities finally drove back the demonstrators, who sought to prevent entry of workers, with tear gas and clubs. A force of 250 pickets barred employees from the National Electric Products corporation plant at Ambridge, Pa.

A food-carrying airplane to strike-besieged workers in the Warren, O. Republic plant crashed but the pilot was not injured.

1-MAN GRAND JURY OPENS INQUIRY

Quiz Other Witnesses to Battle Last Week at Dearborn Plant

DETROIT. (AP)—A subpoena was issued today for Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company as a one-man grand jury began an investigation of last week's fight between company employees and members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne county prosecutor, said process servers who called at the Ford company offices were unable to find either Ford or Harry H. Bennett, personnel director.

Six witnesses appeared today before Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy, conducting the grand jury inquiry on the petition of McCrea.

Other Witnesses

They included Mayor John L. Carey and Police Chief Carl A. Brooks of suburban Dearborn, where fighting broke out last Wednesday as union organizers prepared to distribute "Unionism not Fordism" leaflets.

The others were James Brady, member of the Ford service department which licenses the big Rouge plant of the company in Dearborn; Oscar Jones, 23-year-old Ford employee and former lightweight boxer; Wilfred F. Comment and Burt S. Scallen, Ford employees.

Three men and three women who were members of the union group that attempted to distribute literature as part of the drive to unionize Ford workers, awaited a chance to testify. Several newsmen also were subpoenaed.

FORD COMPANY ACCUSED OF UNFAIR PRACTICES

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, announced today charges of unfair labor practices had been filed with the national labor relations board against the Ford Motor company.

Martin said over 150 specific cases were cited in the charges at the Detroit and Somerville, Mass., regional offices of the board. He said the charges alleged men were discharged for union activities.

FRUIT SHIPPERS ARE FINED

Two Orange county citrus shippers were prosecuted and fined today for shipping frozen citrus fruit, Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs reported today.

He said W. L. Woodall pleaded guilty on two charges and on each was fined $25 with $10 suspended. Hugh Edwards, according to the report, pleaded guilty to a charge of packing frost-damaged fruit and was fined $25 and sentenced to 12½ days in jail. Both penalties were suspended for three months.

FLINT OF L. A. PUT UNDER ARREST

Charge Results From H.
B. Oil and Arroyo
Seco Legislation

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—The Sacramento grand jury today returned indictment against Assemblyman Gene Flint, Los Angeles, charging him with the offering of a bribe to an undisclosed legislator.

Judge Dal M. Lemmon fixed his bail at $5000. Flint learned of the indictment and surrendered himself to the sheriff.

The penalty on conviction for this offense is from one to 10 years.

Attorney Speaks

Attorney Clifford Russell, attorney for the Los Angeles assemblyman, issued a statement from him denying knowledge of any wrong doing.

The statement follows: "Mr. Flint is, of course, surprised by the indictment. He had waited at the grand jury room expecting to be called, but was not given the opportunity to make any statement or to be questioned by members of the grand jury and the district attorney."

"At the present time, he is unaware of the nature of the charges but denies any wrong doing in any of his acts as a legislator."

Meehan Questioned

The grand jury resumed its sessions and questioned Assemblyman Henry P. Meehan of Oakland as the first witness.

Meehan said he was asked if either Assemblymen Flint or Charles Hunt had offered him any

WILL DEMAND TYPEWRITER

County Purchasing Agent Eugene Fenelon will get his orders tomorrow to hustle out and buy the long-awaited L. C. Smith typewriter for County Auditor W. T. Lambert.

Superior Judge G. K. Scovel is to sign a peremptory writ tomorrow, it was learned today. Lew W. Blodgett, who represented Lambert in his mandate hearing, and B. Z. McKinney, attorney who defended Fenelon and the board of supervisors, conferred with Judge Scovel today over the legal findings on which the writ will be based.

The order, result of a hearing 10 days ago, will not only direct Fenelon to purchase the typewriter for Lambert, but also will set a date on which Fenelon will be required to report to the court.

Supervisors today were reported divided on the question of appealing Judge Scovel's decision in order to get a ruling by a higher court. They did not discuss the question at their meeting yesterday. The legal tangle followed establishing of a policy by the board whereby it sought to control purchase of supplies.

Girl Slays Father Who Beat Mother

SAN DIEGO. (AP)—Rather than see her father beat her mother, Marion Ayres, 15, pretty Escondido high school girl, early today shot and killed her father, Frank Thompson Ayres, 47, chief petty officer attached to the U. S. S. Dallas, in their small mountain cabin near here, Coroner Chester D. Gunn reported.

The daughter, the officers said, fired only one shot from a small gauge shotgun. The charge struck the naval officer, who had 22 years in the service, directly in the heart, killing him instantly.

S. A. TO CHART COURSE MONDAY IN STATE-WIDE SAFETY DRIVE

MEETING WITH LONG BEACH SOUGHT

Will Ask State's New Group to Meet With Local Commission

What part Santa Ana might take in state-wide efforts to halt the slaughter in traffic accidents will be discussed by the local traffic safety commission at its meeting next Monday afternoon.

Next Monday night members of the State Traffic Safety commission, formed by action of the state legislature, will meet with members of the Long Beach safety commission.

To Send Delegate
Chairman Elmer Heidt of the Santa Ana traffic commission said today he will bring the matter up at the local meeting Monday afternoon, and seek to have representatives of the local commission at the Long Beach meeting. He also will seek to have Santa Ana included in the schedule of meetings with the state group.

The State Traffic Safety commission is composed of Ray Ingels, director of the department of motor vehicles; Carl Fry of the Industrial Accident commission; S. L. Setton of the attorney general's office; T. H. Dimmis, maintenance engineer of the state division of highways; Alfred Lenz, of the state department of education; M. R. Brown of the state railroad commission; E. Raymond, chief of the state highway patrol, and Niels Nielson, executive secretary.

Coordinate Work
The commission will coordinate the work of cities and counties in efforts to curb the increase of traffic accidents throughout California. Traffic conditions will be studied and recommendations made for remedial legislation. ## INVALID TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Despondent because of a long illness, Benjamin Franklin Detraz, 64-year-old invalid Laguna Beach carpenter, committed suicide early today by shooting himself with a shotgun, the coroner's office reported.

Detraz' body was found in the front yard of his Laguna canyon home at 7 o'clock this morning by Mrs. Mary McCollum, a nurse who had been caring for him. Officers said the time of death was between 2 and 3 a. m.

He left two notes, one containing $10 to the nurse directing her to pay the milk bill, and the other to his daughter, Mrs. Retta Ross of Arcadia, asking that no funeral services be held. No inquest will be held.

BRITAIN CONSIDERS NEW 4-POWER PACT
LONDON. (AP)—Great Britain was reported today to be considering a plan for joint naval action against Spain to offset the establishment of a virtual Italian blockade of ports held by the Spanish government.

Convinced of the necessity of preventing any new critical incidents in the civil war, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was understood to have taken under advisement the plan which would grant Italy's and Germany's demands for guaranteed protection of their fleets in Spanish waters. The British admiralty was reported to be considering dispatch of additional ships to the troubled area.

Under the proposal, the warships of Britain, France, Germany and Italy would unite as an international fleet against Spain in the event of any further molesting of vessels of the "hands off Spain" committee.

'Bundle' or 'Bindle'? It's Important to Griego

Held in Murder

Joe Fleiger (above), 35-year-old Arizona rancher, was charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Henry Townner, another rancher, in historic "Haunted Corral" near Mammoth, Ariz. The slaying, Deputy Sheriff R. C. Kinsey said, is being likened to cattle feuds of the early West which centered in the region around "Haunted Corral." Fleiger is in jail at Florence, Ariz.

MORE BY PEGLER

imagine an agent from the internal revenue department descending on him at the White House to demand realistic explanations of every check, personal or otherwise, issued from his book three years ago.

NO FOOLS HERE

It would be a very foolish reviewer who would require Mr. Roosevelt to dig up his marriage certificate after all these years are allowing him his $2500 exemption. In retaliation for something that he might have said or written about reviewing agents. And only an idiot would assess him a little extra just for the sake of appearances, though admitting that his return was absolutely correct.

Yet these experiences are not unknown to persons who may be classified as politically underprivileged, and nobody can deny that the reviewers nowadays are given discretion to allow or disallow legitimate deductions according to the personal inclination. If an agent dislikes Jews, Catholics or Methodists, the present laws and regulations empower him to harass them with malicious, nagging demands and raise their taxes in the manner of the late Huey P. Long. On the contrary, if he happens to feel like it, he can make valuable concessions, a power which creates an opportunity for graft.

TWILIGHT ZONE

There is a twilight zone in the income tax which invites persecution and corruption, but Mr. Roosevelt would have no personal experience of such matters because no agent would give him the same sort of going over that he might give George Spelvin, the average American, and certainly no agent would be such an utter fool to suggest that he lay $100 on the table and look the other way as a means of adjusting some discretionary problem involving much more. Mr. Roosevelt's indignation would be more impressive, too, if he had not lately had social relations with Seymour Weiss, of New Orleans, who was Huey Long's collector and treasurer and was indicted for alleged violation of the income tax law while Huey was alive but exonerated by the department of justice after Huey's death and the political reconciliation commonly known in Washington as the "Second Louisiana Purchase."

The treasury prepared a case against Mr. Weiss at a time when Huey was giving the administration great discomfort in Louisiana and in the senate, and there is no doubt that the indictment was a source of cheer to the patriots in the administration.

THE CAPONE CASE
A cynic might incline to the suspicion that Mr. Weiss was indicted as a political reprisal and exonerated as a political reward, but it takes no cynic to see that the indictment whether it was used as such in Seymour's case or not.

But no more cynical cynics are to be found anywhere than those in Washington who admit that in the case of Al Capone, the income tax was used to punish a man for murder, arson and riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, and that his sentence of 11 years was, in effect, a lynching.

In another case, under this or some future administration, the same principle might send a man to Alcatraz for 11 years for a small violation of the income tax law and a large opposition to the President. The case of Seymour Weiss, now the friend of the administration and exonerated of wrong doing, conveys the idea.

Large deposits of mica and limestone have just been discovered in Travancore State in India.

A bundlestiff or a bindlestiff?

A fine point in a justice court trial hung on one letter today, denoting the difference between two very colloquial terms in use by railroad men and police officers.

It all grew out of the jury trial of Reuben M. Griego, charged with opening a switch on the Santa Fe line here two weeks ago and warning trainmen just in time to prevent a southbound freight from being derailed.

Terms Defined
The brakeman, who ran back up the track to investigate Griego's report of an open switch, had testified last week that he met a man walking along the track. He said he thought the man was a bundlestiff.

Maxwell Burke, defense attorney, sought to learn from Fred Johnson, special Santa Fe investigator, whether he investigated the bundlestiff—or was it a bindlestiff?—he asked.

Burke's point hinged on the definition of terms. A bundlestiff, it seems, is a railroad hobo who carries a bundle on his back. This is a usually harmless species which walks along the track, may sleep in or under box cars, but never rides trains and never bothers anyone.

Narcotic Addict
A bindlestiff, in police parlance, is a narcotic addict. A bindle is a pinch of narcotics wrapped in a cigar paper. If the strange man was a bundlestiff, Johnson would take it for granted he could not have been the one who tampered with the switch. Bundlestiff just don't do that. A bindlestiff, though, might have.

Johnson testified he believed the brakeman had said "bundlestiff," and had not suspected him of tampering with the switch. A defense motion for dismissal was denied by Justice Kenneth Morrison.

Three Injured In S. A. Traffic

Three persons were injured in traffic accidents on Santa Ana streets yesterday afternoon. Mrs. M. A. Rodriguez, 2109 Logan street, was out and bruised when a car driven by her husband collided at First and Main streets with an auto driven by Herb Allenman, 521 South Parton street.

Two-year-old Dixie Lee Dobkins, 319 East Third street, was bruised in a collision at First and Sprague streets. A car driven by her mother, Mrs. Leonard D. Dobkins, was involved in a collision with an auto driven by John Philip Greeley, Balboa.

Mrs. Yvonne Blaisdell, Costa Mesa, was taken to a physician for first aid treatment yesterday afternoon after her car, stopped at First and Main streets for a traffic light, assertedly was struck from the rear by an auto driven by William Moore, Corona del Mar.

MORE ABOUT DUKE, WALLY

Mrs. Warfield had been twice divorced.

She'll Say "Obey"
Herman L. Rogers, the couple's American spokesman, will give Mrs. Warfield away in the religious ceremony, and Maj. Edward Dudley Metcalf, the duke's equerry, will be best man. Rogers and Major Metcalf will act as witnesses for the couple at the civil ceremony.

Rogers disclosed that Mrs. Warfield will promise "to obey" in the traditional words of the Church of England service. Rogers announced that Windsor and his bride would spend their honeymoon at Wasserleburg, the Austrian castle they have rented. The Duke and Duchess, Rogers said, will leave Chateau Cande by automobile at 6 p. m. to board a special car attached to an Austrian-bound train.

Time of Services
The civil ceremony, Rogers said, will be performed between 11:30 and 11:55 a. m., and the religious ceremony, to last exactly 20 minutes, will start promptly at noon. Elaborate police precautions were laid to barricade the wedding against feverishly increasing public curiosity. Only pedestrians and occupants of press and official cars will be permitted to get even a long distance view of the castle.

It Was Voluntary
The Rev. Mr. Jardine returned to Tours after his visit to the chateau, where he lunched with the Duke and Mrs. Warfield.

As to whether the Anglican church approved his action, he added: "No permission has been asked or given. I did not consult any ecclesiastical authority. I only consulted my own conscience."

"I knew both the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Warfield strongly desired a religious ceremony. When I made my offer, it was accepted by the Duke. It was voluntary on my part."

FILM STRIKE GREGG RITES FLARES INTO NEW CRISIS

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—The film studio strike flared into a new crisis today as the Federated Motion Picture Crafts stormily repudiated a settlement announced by the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Striking painters overrode their union officers and joined in voting, 640 to 276, with other units of the federation to continue the walkout until granted written guarantee of closed shop and wage increase.

The ballot culminated a night-long meeting at the Hollywood Women's club, where Joseph Clarke, international vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators, was booed from the speakers' stand by angry unionists.

The painters, makeup artists, hairdressers and draftsmen, comprising the large majority of the 1100 craftsmen concerned in the long-strike, had been expected to return to work today.

Under terms announced yesterday by George E. Browne, international president of the I. A. T. S. E., after conferences with Clark and producers, these chief units of the federated crafts were to receive a 10 per cent salary boost and I. A. T. S. E. shop.

SLUMAN JOINS HORTON FIRM

Attracted by the beauty of Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sluman of Seattle, Wash., have decided to adopt this city as their future home, and Mrs. Sluman has entrenched that purpose by accepting a responsible position with the J. C. Horton Furniture company.

He will be in charge of the commercial refrigeration department for the Horton company. Refrigeration has been his life's work. He has been in the instruction engineering department for many years with the Kelvinator factory and previous to that time with Frigidaire. His latest affiliation was with a large Seattle distributing company, being in charge of refrigeration.

Sluman put in about four and one-half years with the Canadian Legion during the World war.

June Marriage Rush Begins Here

June, traditional month of marriages, opened with a rush yesterday at the county clerk's marriage license bureau. And the first couple to get a license gave the names of Edward Handstein, 24, musician, and Lily Ann Ruth Mintz, 18, both of Los Angeles.

During the day 35 couples appeared to apply for licenses in the largest day's filings in many months. County Clerk J. M. Backs predicted that June will be the greatest month for marriages here in recent years.

Each month this year has shown an increase over last year in the number of marriage licenses issued.

Laboratory Holds Key to Death of Black-White Man

A laboratory test of the black matter which turned William L. Morrison black inside and out and caused his death Monday was awaited today by Santa Ana physicians.

Morrison died Monday at St. Joseph's hospital from a rare disease which was caused either by a tumor on the liver or by overwork in citrus groves during the freeze last winter, specialists believed. The laboratory test was being made following an autopsy Monday night, attended by prominent Orange county and Los Angeles physicians.

Senator Culbert L. Olson of Los Angeles, whose charges of bribery were made on the senate floor and precipitated the investigation, was not called. District Attorney Babcock said, because "this information was hearsay and not of the kind which could be put before a jury."

Assemblyman Welsh asserted he told the grand jury he had been approached by an assemblyman who asked what "he was paying for a vote on his oil bill." Welsh said he told the legislature, "nothing." He declined to name him.

Educator Due to Speak Here Explodes 'McAdoo Myth'

By JAMES A. STAPP
LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Senator McAdoo better get off those waxed floors of the Washington night clubs and get back here with plenty of sand for his political skirts.

Thus did Jacob D. Allen, Chicago lecturer and educator who is to address an Orange county mass meeting at the junior college auditorium in Santa Ana the night of June 10, summarize what he declared was a deep-rooted revolt among Southern California Democrats against President Roosevelt because of his supreme court plan, and against McAdoo because of the California senator's attitude toward the plan.

"This revolt is serious from the Democratic party standpoint," Allen declared. "I found two distinct attitudes among the men and women who are dissatisfied with their 73-year-old senator, the senator who at three score and thirteen declared himself so heartily in accord with the President's demand for retirement of supreme court justices at 70. With some, there is amused tolerance with his antics; with others, outright antagonism."

Judge Preston Favored
"I found two names mentioned as possible successors to this old man who rose to mythical heights during the White House incumbency of his one-time father-in-law, Woodrow Wilson. I don't think there is any doubt that the McAdoo myth has been exploded. The two men I heard discussed as possible successors are: "Former Associate State Supreme Court Justice John W. Preston of Los Angeles, and Claude Chandler of San Diego."

"Chandler, however, I was given to understand, will not be a candidate against Preston, but will support Preston's candidacy. "This revolt stretches from one end of the Southland to the other. In Kings county, there is amused tolerance. But in San Diego county a group of Democrats is actually being organized to push the Preston or Chandler candidacy."

Map Court Meeting
"Orange county is extremely fortunate in obtaining a speaker of Mr. Allen's caliber," Ben Tarver, chairman of the Orange county committee of the League for Supreme Court Independence, said in announcing near completion of arrangements for the meeting.

Jules W. Markel, chairman of the Santa Ana committee of the league who is working with Tarver in organizing Orange county's protest, said Thomas L. McFadden, Anaheim attorney, is expected to introduce Allen.

Delegations to attend this mass protest meeting have been organized in Orange, Anaheim, and Fullerton, and are being organized in Brea, Garden Grove, Laguna, Placentia, La Habra, and the Newport Beach-Balboa district, according to reports reaching Tarver, he said.

Whether a trust deed given in 1934 but based upon a note dated in 1930 has prior claims over a judgment levied in 1933 was a question the superior court here was asked to solve today.

Elizabeth Ingersoll, Alice A. Parker and the Orange County Title company, holders of a $2121.62 trust deed from Walter E. Baker, asked the court to hold their claim as superior to a $2375.55 judgment levied by Ivan R. Bean in 1933.

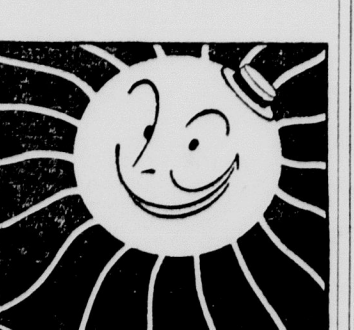

Bean, Baker and Sheriff Logan Jackson were named defendants. The property involved is a lot in the Rosa tract, Santa Ana.

Boat Works Sues Dredging Firm

Carelessness of the Smith Brothers Boat Works in dredging in Newport Harbor resulted in sanding up the marine ways of the Pacific Boat company, the latter charged today in starting a $5075 damage action in superior court here.

The Pacific Boat company, through John Martell and Donald D. Harwood, declared that dredging at the foot of Twenty-second street, Newport Beach, caused sand and silt to drift onto the boat works.

The firm asked $5000 general damages and $75 assertedly spent in a futile effort to remove the silt and sand.

NEW JOURNAL PRAISED BY READERS

Evidence that The Journal's increased size has resulted in a greatly increased popularity have piled up by telephone and correspondence this month.

For example, here are five of the many comments heard over the telephone this morning, all praising the bigger and better Journal and its many new features:

Albert Harvey: "Westbrook Pegler alone is worth the price of The Journal as far as I'm concerned, and in combination with the other enlarged features, it's a steal."

Mrs. W. A. West: "I certainly do like having so much society and women's news, particularly the pictures and 'Chat Awhile With Betty.' And then the other folks in the family like other features. The Journal's plenty big enough to go around."

Mrs. Crawford Nalle: "I and I miss The Journal's style. I do not get to read it—and I particularly like the full coverage of all the interests of feminine readers."

Mrs. C. Harold Dale: "I have always found The Journal to be an extremely readable paper, and of course now that it has more features and more space it is just twice as good. I like the new recipe treatment, for one thing."

Mrs. Cy Featherly: "I like anything with pep and punch, and that's why I get such a kick out of every phase of The Journal. I suppose it's silly but I enjoy Mary Stoddard—and, like every woman, I like the recipes and beauty and so on. I even catch my husband reading those features, but he likes Westbrook Pegler and Bob Burns the best, of course."

TENANCY ACTION
W. J. Truran today petitioned the superior court here to terminate the interest of M. H. Truran in a lot at Tustin the pair owned jointly. M. H. Truran died May 21, according to the petition.

PRESIDENT'S MILLION AND A HALF RELIEF BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

BATTLE NOW LOOMS IN SENATE

F. D. R. Agrees to Having Measure Modified By Earmarking

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The administration's $1,500,000,000 relief bill, winning midnight house approval after a compromise quashed a persistent revolt, went to the senate today for another major battle.

Economy advocates in that chamber said they would renew demands to cut the fund by one-third. A house bloc lost a similar attempt before the final 323 to 44 vote by which the bill passed. There were prospects, too, some senators would try to renege amendments to earmark one-third of the total for roads, dams and other special projects. These won tentative house approval last week over the objections of administration leaders.

Agree to Modification
After week-end conferences, however, the President's lieutenants agreed on modifications, which were accepted last night. Majority Leader Rayburn (D., Tex.) had argued tying of the President's hands by the earmarking amendments would force dismissal of more than 630,000 workers from works progress rolls. The administration contended the earmarking proposals would take extra money for materials and reduce the amount available for wages.

Three Compromises
House members described the compromise as including:
1. An administration promise that probably more than the $45,000,000 tentatively earmarked would be spent for flood control.
2. An agreement to revoke an all-relief-labor order which had held up use of $131,000,000 now in the Public Works administration's revolving fund for loans and grants to cities. This would mean completion of a large number of projects for which cities already have voted bond issues.
3. A promise to make relief funds available for building ponds and lakes to raise the water level of the Southwest "dust bowl."

Road Plan Loses
Although the administration had offered to supply relief labor for construction of "farm to market" roads, Chairman Cartwright (D., Okla.) of the house roads committee held out for setting aside $150,000,000 for road construction under contracts let by state highway departments. His amendment, once tentatively approved, was rejected 207 to 167.

After the principal controversy was settled by rejection of the earmarking proposals, the house acted swiftly on a number of other proposed amendments.

Eighteen new members of the Orange County Humane society were accepted at a monthly meeting held last night at the Neal Sporting Goods store. She came here from her home in Los Angeles to give the talk. Next meeting will be held in the judge's chambers in the city hall the second Tuesday in July, it was announced by President Charles Ocan of the local society.

BOY FAILS TO GET DAMAGES

Superior Judge James L. Allen late yesterday took from the hands of a jury the task of deciding whether Oscar Rivera, four years of age, was entitled to damages for injuries he sustained last summer when a school teeter board fell and cracked his skull. Judge Allen granted a non-suit motion by Stanley M. Reinhaus and A. W. Bradley, defense attorneys representing the Santa Ana board of education. He held that the boy and his father, Jesus Rivera, had not established a claim against the school. Represented by Robert R. Stentz, Los Angeles attorney, the youth sought $25,000 damages for the accident, which occurred Aug. 20 at the Lincoln school.

Members of the jury, who were discharged when Judge Allen gave his decision, were John H. Lewis, Fred Atkins, Anna E. Clark, Jennie Ahlmann, Olive E. Hogue, W. W. Middleton, Jessie Stump, Jennie Clem, David Lunsden, R. E. Willis, John H. Johnson and Madeleine Maas.

Sheppard Urges Water Plan Action

Status of the Orange county flood control program is discussed by Congressman Harry R. Sheppard in a communication received today by The Journal. Sheppard outlined developments of the program, and its history, pointing out that never before or perhaps never again will Orange county have as fair a proposition offered as that contained under public law 738, approved by the 74th congress.

"This great opportunity," he said, "may present factors in differences. The future welfare of Orange county is so definitely involved that the citizens interested in this project must approach it unbiased and with no political concern that might cause them to lose sight of their main objective." Sheppard said that he has received more than 100 letters from Orange county residents during the past 10 days asking the status of the flood control project.

CHANGES ASKED AT LOWELL

Unsatisfactory conditions in the auditorium of the Lowell school were brought to the attention of the board of education last night by Mrs. J. A. LaLonde, Lowell P. T. A. president.

Mrs. LaLonde said the platform in the auditorium is so low that many persons have to stand up in the auditorium in order to see the activities on the stage. She asked that the platform be raised.

Business Manager George Newcom pointed out that the situation was investigated a year ago, and that it would be an expensive and difficult job to raise the platform, because of the doors, windows, steam radiators, etc., which would be affected.

It was promised that the situation would be checked again. A similar condition prevails in some other schools, including Roosevelt, Franklin and Jefferson, it was stated.

File Protest On Hudson Hog Ranch

Supervisors yesterday received their first official protest against a hog ranch other than the L. & N. Feeding company ranch near Talbert which was the immediate cause of the county's new hog ranch regulation ordinance.

TALBERT MAN NEW DEPUTY SHERIFF

Ed Hoffman, Talbert resident, yesterday was appointed to the county farm theft detail to fill the vacancy left by the death of Claude Potter.

Sheriff Logan Jackson told the board he was willing to recommend Hoffman, who was nominated by Supervisor John Mitchell of Garden Grove, with the understanding that he may be replaced later if he does not prove satisfactory.

The board previously had appointed Cliff King of Huntington Beach, also on Mitchell's nomination, but King's salary as a machinist was raised and he turned down the county job.

Sheriff Jackson said yesterday that Hoffman has had experience as a police officer, but that he was willing to train the new man. Hoffman is a native of Orange county.

EXAMPLES OF TAX DODGING ARE CITED

Eight Flagrant Ways Told By President In His Message

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt's message to congress yesterday detailing examples of tax evasion raised today in capitol conversation the question—who are those charged by the treasury with evasion?

The message mentioned no names, but listed the following instances which give a comprehensive description of some asserted evaders.

1. "One American citizen with a $3,000,000 Bahamas corporation has apparently attempted to prevent the bureau of internal revenue from catching up with him by filing his individual tax returns in successive years from towns in New Brunswick, British Columbia and Jamaica."

2. "Perhaps the most flagrant case of this character is that of a retired American army officer with a large income from valuable American securities which he desires to sell at a very large profit. To escape our income and inheritance tax laws, he used the device of becoming a naturalized Canadian citizen, and six days later organized four Bahamas corporations to hold his securities."

3. "Two New York insurance agents have caused the organization of insurance companies in the Bahamas with a view to enabling taxpayers to secure spurious deductions for interest through an ingenious scheme for the issuance of life insurance policies."

4. "One man's yacht is owned by his personal holding company, along with $3,000,000 in securities. He rents the yacht from his company for a sum far less than the cost of the upkeep, and the company uses its income from the securities to pay the wages of the captain and crew, the expenses of operating the yacht and an annual depreciation allowance."

5. "One wealthy man has placed his $5,000,000 city residence in such a corporation; another his racing stable, whose losses last year were nearly $200,000."

6. "One wealthy woman has improved on the general plan of evasion by causing her personal holding company, which owns her country place, to employ her husband at a salary to manage it. She can thereby supply him with pocket money, and in effect claims a tax reduction for the expense of maintaining him."

Forms 64 Trusts

7. "One thrifty taxpayer has formed 64 trusts for the benefit of four members of his immediate family, and thereby claims to have

LONDON. (AP)—Opposition members of the house of commons laughed at Neville Chamberlain, the new premier, yesterday, when he declared "it is not true to say that we have repudiated the American debt."

Chamberlain, former chancellor of the exchequer, making his first address to the house as prime minister, replied to attacks against the finance program which he has fathered.

"When the opposition speak of the American debt," the premier said, "they never speak of the debts and reparations owed us. Yesterday they had not heard of the Russian debt. The unfunded Russian debt to this country is $6,888,170,000."

Chamberlain is trying, against his regular opposition and that of some of his own party adherents, to legislate a new tax on increased profits.

saved them over $485,000 in one year in taxes."

8. "Another thrifty pair have constituted 40 trusts for their relatives, and a prominent lawyer and his wife utilize 16 trusts for the same purpose."

9. "In one case $43,000 is annually appropriated by a corporation to a pension trust for the benefit of its two chief owners. One of the co-owners will retire at the age of 65 with a monthly pension of $1725, and the other will retire at 60 with a monthly pension of $1425."

GABLE ACCUSER FILES APPEAL

Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, booked at the county jail here to serve a year's term for mail fraud after she was convicted of claiming Clark Gable was the father of her child, today had an appeal on file.

A petition for permission to appeal as a pauper was on file before the U. S. circuit court in San Francisco in behalf of Mrs. Norton. The court denied a request for a writ of habeas corpus which accompanied the petition, filed by Morris Lavine of Los Angeles, Mrs. Norton's attorney.

She was given permission to appeal after the Los Angeles trial by Judge George Cosgrave of Fresno. The federal court clerk in Los Angeles did not send the record of the appeal to the circuit court, however, on grounds that only citizens have the right to appeal as paupers. Mrs. Norton is a citizen of Great Britain.

The circuit court yesterday directed the clerk to send the record to San Francisco so that a decision on the appeal might be handed down.

HAMILTON SEES G. O. P. POWER

NEW YORK. (AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, said here that he expects the Republican party to have a working organization in congress after the 1938 elections, with enough power to vitally influence the presidential election in 1940.

Republican finances are slowly improving, he said, about a quarter of a million dollars having been collected since the first of the year. The deficit has been reduced to about $800,000, he declared.

Hamilton left today on the French liner Normandie for a protracted European vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hughes have just celebrated their seventieth wedding anniversary near Newbury, Eng., and Hughes, who is 90, is still singing in the church choir.

COURT CHANGE FORUM TOPIC

Contending there is a need for changes in the federal judiciary, as outlined by President Roosevelt's court plan, Dr. Edward P. Morton, head of the department of law at Los Angeles Junior college last night addressed representatives of six Orange county towns who attended the first meeting of the summer forums now being conducted at the Unitarian church.

Morton, said the President's plan is composed of four definite parts, only one of which has aroused any opposition.

On the matter of split decisions since the start of the depression, Morton indicated that it was more a matter of individual opinion on public policy rather than the letter of the law that caused the split.

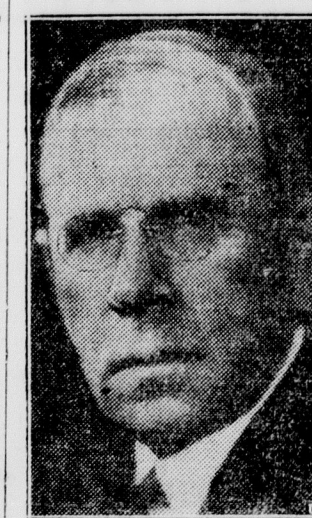

Morton reached the conclusion that since the decisions were really based on economic theory rather than law, it was vital that men making the laws be of this generation.

He said that the men needed on the federal benches, not alone on the supreme court, should be men who have had recent and active experience with changing economic and social problems.

ASKS FOR ESTATE

Hertha Ehlen today asked the superior court here to appoint her administrator of the estate of H. H. Jones, who died in 1919 in Alameda, leaving a lot in Seal Beach.

George F. Baker, New York financier pictured above, underwent an operation for peritonitis aboard his yacht, Viking, while it was cruising in the South Seas. A nurse from a cruise ship was transferred to the yacht to assist Dr. Ambler, a guest on the yacht, perform the operation, following which the Viking sped to Honolulu. Shortly after reaching there, Baker died.

Townsend News, Views

By
WALTER R. ROBB

The La Habra club met Monday evening in the Masonic hall in regular business session with E. E. Prouder, president, in the chair. A number from this club were constantly on hand at the bazaar where the club conducted a booth.

E. T. Sutton, president of Los Angeles club No. 121, and a party of friends from the same city paid a visit to the Orange county bazaar last Saturday afternoon and expressed themselves as much pleased with the decorated appearance of the hall and booths. Sutton is a son of the Rev. E. H. Sutton and wife of the La Habra club. He is also a member of the 15th congressional district Townsend board.

The Laguna Beach club will stage a turkey dinner at 6:30 tomorrow evening in the Woman's clubhouse. The affair was reported to this column as being carried out with the purpose of raising funds for sending a delegate to the Townsend national convention in Washington, D. C., July 21 to 25. The writer knows that when the Laguna Beach club serves a turkey dinner it will include all the fixings which goes with a good, old-fashioned Middle-West type of dinner. The writer has attended some of these Laguna Beach club happenings and knows whereof he speaks.

W. D. Barnard, president of Santa Ana club No. 1, announces a meeting at 7:30 tomorrow night in the Roosevelt school on East Fourth street with Frank Kentall as the speaker. Kentall is one of the old wheelhorses of the Townsend movement in Orange county. He also served on the 15th district board for a time. At the club's last meeting the membership voted to send J. A. Grant as its delegate to the Townsend national convention. Tomorrow night the alternate delegate will be selected. The membership is urged to be present.

Mrs. Lillian Rockwell, wife of W. F. Rockwell of 117½ West Third street, made a contribution of several beautiful oil paintings to the clubs conducting booths at the bazaar. One picture in particular, which was on display in Santa Ana No. 6 club's booth, deserves special mention. It was a scene representative of Montana, where the Rockwells lived before coming to California. In the background were mountains of blue with the shadows of the evening beginning to show on their eastern slopes, which edged a beautiful lake, reflecting the tints of the lingering colors of a sunset. High in the sky over the mountains were floating white clouds which, too, were sending back the colors of the evening sun. The shorelines stretched away on each side of the picture back to the mountains in the distance, and on its banks at the foot stood giant pines, multiplied by innumerable others. At the water's edge were rocks, and on one unusually large one in the foreground, stood an elk. It is a picture which reflects the beauty of nature as it appears in many places in that state. The picture is original and bears the name of Mrs. Rockwell. The picture was not disposed of at the bazaar but is still in the possession of club No. 6, to be displayed later to

NEW PEAK IN AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

Building Of Cars And Trucks Almost Up To 1929 Record

Marking the brightest outlook since 1929, the automobile industry has once again returned to almost capacity commercial car and truck production schedule, according to George Dunton, local Ford dealer.

Business and industry are rapidly replacing old trucks and commercial cars with the more economical and efficient 1937 models, he said. Indicative of this trend toward modernization, R. L. Polk figures for the first quarter of 1937 show an increase of almost 15,000 commercial car and truck registrations, all makes, over the same period a year ago. A marked decrease in operating costs of new equipment and generally improved business conditions are given by Dunton, as some of the reasons for this trend.

Offering further reasons for the substitution of new trucks and commercial cars for old, Dunton pointed to the remarkable evidences of economy and efficiency obtained in gas economy runs, for privately owned Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars, as held at the local agency a few days ago.

Meeting the popular demand for operating economy "plus," records of better than 30 miles per gallon have been turned in by the new 1937 Ford V-8 60-horsepower commercial cars.

Dunton added that these trucks were driven by the owner's regular drivers under every-day driving conditions.

"The results of these runs," he said, "are not only remarkable proof of Ford V-8 economy, but they also bear out the fact that new and efficient equipment operated under normal every-day conditions bring maximum results."

become the possession of some person.

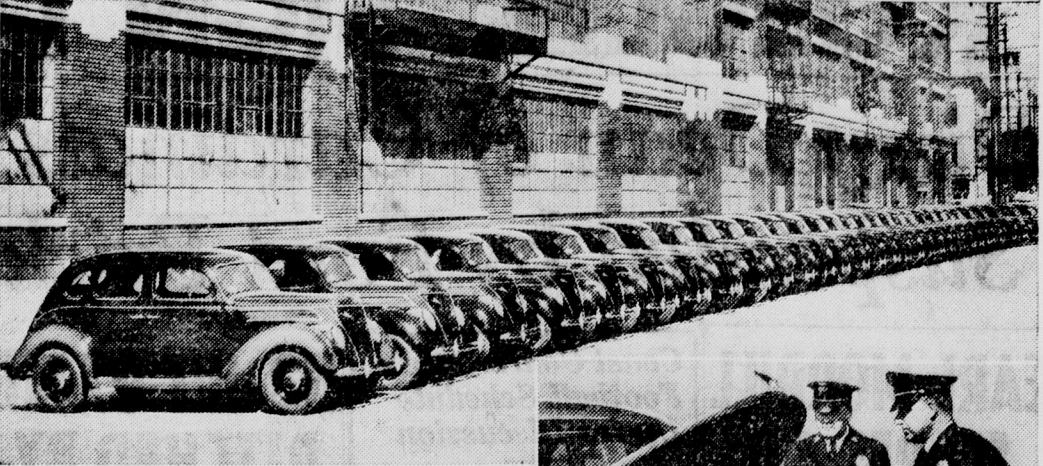

Santa Ana club No. 3 will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 in Santa Ana Townsend hall, 509 West Fourth street, according to Dr. U. G. Little, who will preside. The chief matter to come before the meeting will be results obtained from the booth maintained at the bazaar. The membership is asked to be present.

Another party who made a valuable contribution as a fund-raising medium was Madame Sara, who conducted a fortune teller's booth at the bazaar. She was patronized by many during the three days of the bazaar and her receipts, so the writer understands, are to be turned over to the promotion of the Townsend cause. Madame Sara recently became a fully paid member of Santa Ana club No. 2.

The Buena Park club, which held a dance last Thursday night in the Woman's clubhouse, reports having had a splendid time. Lon's orchestra furnished the music to which the crowd stepped it off for several hours. Mary A. Ritter, corresponding secretary, says the club will meet tomorrow evening in the same building at 7:30 in a business session. The membership is urged to be present.

Next Saturday afternoon at 3:56 Eighth street, Riverside, Townsend headquarters, the second of a series of Townsend club speakers' meetings of the 19th district will be held. This time the club presidents have been invited also. Are you planning on being present?

New Ford Units Speed Law Enforcement in Los Angeles

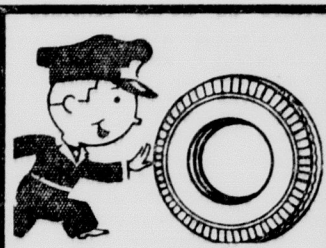

Law enforcement work demands cars that are speedy, yet economical and efficient. The Ford V-8 is meeting these requirements for the Los Angeles police department. Recently 31 new V-8 sedans were added, bringing the total Ford V-8's in Los Angeles city police service well in excess of 200 units. Included in this delivery were Ford V-8 85 horsepower units for traffic law enforcement and a number of Ford V-8 60 horsepower units for detail and investigation work. Chief of Police James E. Davis, right, and Captain Fred A. Theobald are pictured here as they inspect the new 60 horsepower engine size in a 1937 Ford V-8. Maximum economy and V-8 performance of durability, speed and pickup were among the principal factors in the police department's choice of the thrifty "60" for special detail and investigation work, states George Dunton, local Ford dealer.

URGE SPRAYS TO KILL BEDBUGS

Five bites must an ordinary bedbug have before he can attain adulthood, asserts the American Institute of Sanitation, New York City. Not that the institute entomologists kept nightly vigils to determine the number of salutes made by individual bugs.

No, the answer to the problem was arrived at more simply. A bedbug, it is pointed out, moults (changes its skin) five times before reaching maturity, growing a little larger after each moult. In order to grow a new skin, reasons the institute, it must have food. And to have food, it must bite. Therefore, it must have at least five bites before growing up.

"Get the bug before it gets five bites," should be the motto of every neat housekeeper," continues the institute. "Conditions being what they are, even the finest of homes are not immune from invasion and, nobody is obliged to board the pests. They take at least a month to grow to maturity and in that time can be destroyed with the various efficient powders, sprays and liquids now available."

Board Hears Plea To Give Boys Chance to Shoot

Boys still like to go hunting, but they don't have the opportunities and the wide open spaces their fathers had, H. C. Jackson, fish and game warden, told the board of supervisors yesterday.

Appearing on behalf of "the boys," Jackson said he hoped that as supervisors develop the county parks they will provide target ranges where boys may go to do their shooting instead of killing birds.

"I'm constantly stopping boys or arresting them for shooting blackbirds or doves. Most of the land is private property or in game reserves, and it's hard for boys to find a proper place to shoot," the game warden said.

S. A. WOMAN SEES BUICK FACTORY

Flint, Mich.—How Buick cars are built was witnessed at first hand a few days ago by Mrs. Beulah Gisler of Santa Ana, who was a visitor at the Buick factories here. Mrs. Gisler spent several hours going through the plants under the direction of a guide who explained the various processes in automobile manufacture as each manufacturing department was visited.

One of the most interesting points, according to Mrs. Gisler, was the final assembly plant where the complete assembling of the car from the frame to the finished automobile, is to be seen. Here the shining new cars take form under the visitor's eyes and roll off the end of the final assembly line at the rate of one a minute.

The huge forge plant, where giant machines forge out crankshafts, cams and other parts, and the sheet metal division in which fenders and other sheet metal parts are stamped out on huge presses and costly dies, were among other impressive sights, Mrs. Gisler said.

ODDS and ENDS

Oh, hum! Some odds in the East are favoring Braddock four (4) to one (1), while others are leaning toward Louis ten (10) to six (6). Take your choice! Personally, we like Champion Braddock to retain his heavyweight crown when he mixes with the negro challenger in Chicago on June 22.

Fred Erdhaus, S. A. J. C.'s all-conference end, plans to life-guard at either Newport or Balboa this summer, but may be forced to divide time at summer school here to whip his credits into shape for Stanford in the fall.

Add nightfall nicknames: "McGraw" for "Doc" Smith of the Stars, and "Barracuda" for Willard Bath of Westminster. They had these names tacked on 'em at Westminster last night, and they may stick for the season.

The Orange County Athletic club will have two standard-bearers in the Southern California A. A. U. boxing carnival in Hollywood tonight—Jack Jones, the light-heavyweight of Newport, and Barney Reese, clever little scrapper from Atwood.

Copy-Wrighted predicted three of the four National Nightball league attractions last night, missing Colton's 4-3 upset over Huntington Beach, but calling Orange's 6-5 victory over Riverside, Santa Ana's 4-0 shutout over Westminster, and San Bernardino's 5-3 win over Anaheim.

AMERICA'S CUP TRIALS BEGIN

Champion Braddock Displays No Signs of Weakening Legs

Watching Jimmy Braddock prepare for his June 22 bout in Chicago with Joe Louis:—For one who will celebrate his 32nd birthday in December the heavyweight champion looks good. Braddock jabs well with his left. He seems to pack plenty of power in his right. He carries no apparent superfluous weight. But that is not what interests us. It is Braddock's legs we try to study. If there is any sign of wear in them it is not visible as he boxes sparmanes. The champion boxes right up on his toes.

From sparring partners nothing is learned that might lead us to believe Braddock's underpinnings are weakening.

"Don't worry about the champ's legs," Sparmanes Charlie Massera says. "They're okay. I do eight miles on the road with him every morning. He's not at all tired at the end."

Braddock himself feels certain that two years' absence from ring wars have not robbed his legs of their spring and endurance. He realizes his legs will have much to do with the result of his bout with the Brown Bomber.

The fine condition of his legs enabled Braddock to keep away from Max Baer for 15 rounds and outpoint the former titleholder. Throughout that fight, Braddock kept circling from his left to right, riding with Baer's right hand smashes and thus robbing the punches of their power.

If he is to defend his title successfully against the much younger Louis, Braddock will have to enter the ring with perfectly conditioned legs that carry him out of danger and stand up under Louis' hard punches. Jack Dempsey or Tony Canzoneri could tell him about legs.

EARL MORRILL SCORES 4-0 SHUTOUT

Westminster Is Victim as Stars Soar; Mott Belts Three Hits

Two games ahead of the field as the result of a sparkling 4-0 shutout over Westminster, Santa Ana Stars surveyed the first-quarter standings of the National Nightball league today, and enjoyed a long, hearty chuckle at the expense of critics who counted them out of the '37 chase.

"Doc" Smith's well-balanced aggregation, with Earl Morrill pulling out of a deep hole in the first and going on to pitch championship ball, scored their sixth win in seven starts in the very first inning at Westminster.

Young Comes Through
Left Fielder Tom Denney led off with a scorching single to center, and Manager Smith was safe at first when Fred Gunther bobbled his bunt, sending Denney to third. Charley Comstock and Nan Coates fanned, but Tommy Young saved the rally with a single to center that was good for two runs.

The Stars added one in the fifth when Smith doubled to center, and took third on Bruce Harnois' bobble of the hot grounder. Comstock singled his manager home. They scored their final run in the sixth, with Charley Nix bounce-hitting to second. He advanced on a wild pitch, took third on Bob Mott's second of three singles, and scored while Shortstop Alex Clark was throwing Denney out at first.

Westminster turned on the heat in the first, after Santa Ana's two-run spree. Alex Clark was safe when Comstock bobbled a sharp grounder for the first of two errors. Bruce Harnois and Randolph Bell planned perfect bunts to the pitcher's box to load the bases. But Earl Morrill, a smart little veteran who doesn't become rattled in the pinch, struck out Jim McNabb and Willard Bath, two dangerous hitters, and forced Catcher Joe Wallin to ground out to Young at third.

Francis Penhall's Aviators went out 1-2-3 in four of the next eight frames. A snappy double play, Bomo Koral to Smith to Mott, caught Cecil Sauters and Pitcher Dugan in the fifth. Comstock made a beautiful running stop of Clark's grounder to the right of short in the eighth.

Each Fan Seven
Dugan gave up 10 hits to Morrill's 7, but each fanned seven and were on about even terms except for the first inning. . . . A good crowd saw the game, marred by seven errors. . . . Santa Ana goes to Riverside next Friday night, comes back to the Municipal bowl next Tuesday.

WOODALL'S .402 PACING COAST

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Adding 21 points to his already high average, Larry Woodall of the San Francisco Seals remained at the head of the Pacific Coast league batters in games played through Monday.

Games Friday Night
Anaheim at Orange, Huntington Beach at Westminster, Colton at San Bernardino (Thursday).

From first to second place was a sad blow to Huntington Beach's 1936 champions last week, but today found Joe Rodgers' Oilers slipping even farther down the National Nightball league standings with a 4 to 3 loss at Colton last night.

Riverside scored six runs in the third, but Orange's Cubs came back brilliantly to win at home, 6 to 5, while San Bernardino outpointed Anaheim, 5 to 3, at San Bernardino.

Santa Ana's Stars shut out Westminster, 4 to 0, continue a torrid pace at the head of the first quarter standing.

Johnny Stone's single over the head of Third-baseman Bill McKinley spelled defeat for Huntington Beach, which faced the offerings of Colton's new chucker, Phil Wire. Wire struck out eight to leave the Oilers with one in the ninth, but Henry Thier and Schuchardt ended the rally by fanning. . . . Rodgers was robbed of a hit in the third when Third-baseman Weiser brought down a liner.

Outfielder Kelly's home run with Ed Daley and Bill Sweet, who had singled, aboard showed San Bernardino off to a three-run lead in the first. Kelly's hit scored two more in the seventh, after Daley and Sweet had singled. . . . Lyle Morse struck out 12 Colton players in seven innings before giving way to Wilbur Stinchfield. Morse scored Anaheim's first run on a double, coming all the way around on an error. . . . Bobby Fowler, southpaw, whiffed nine Anaheim players. (Chicago) Mat Higgins, single to left field in the sixth produced Anaheim's other two runs by Fred Wiseman and Floyd Montgomery, who singled and advanced on George Preble's sacrifice.

Irwin (Baldy) Foltz scored from third in the eighth when Catcher Earl Peterson ran over to catch Rod Ballard's pop fly, and left the base uncovered. Larry Leichtfuss, Foltz and Walt singled during the rally.

Today a year ago—Jaako Mikola, 50-year-old Finn, named head track coach at Harvard to succeed Eddie Farrell.

Koegler Promoted

Joe Koegler, Washington State college graduate, who has been promoted to head coach in varsity basketball and baseball, and line coach in football by Director W. W. (Bill) Foote, department head.

Promotion of Joe Koegler, popular addition from Washington State university last year, to head coach of varsity and sophomore basketball and to assistant coach in varsity football are among the principal changes.

Greene Voluntarily Retires
Both varsity positions have been filled by Reece (Pinky) Greene, who voluntarily retires in order to devote additional time to class study and to get an earlier start in varsity track, in which he is head coach.

In football, Greene will coach the sophomore team, which is sponsored by the Citrus Belt League (Santa Ana's new set-up) instead of Class B and C competition as sponsored by the Santa's old playmates—Long Beach Poly and Woodrow Wilson, San Diego's Hillers and Herbert Hoover, and Glendale.

The new coaching set-up follows: William Warren (Bill) Foote—head of the physical education department; head coach in football. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

Reece H. (Pinky) Greene—head coach of varsity and sophomore track; coach of sophomore football. He is a graduate of Iowa State.

Clyde Patton—head coach in tennis, tumbling and swimming; physical education class instructor. He is a graduate of Pomona College.

Joe Koegler—head coach of varsity basketball and baseball; line coach in varsity football. He has been in charge of Class B basketball and varsity baseball.

Along with the new coaching staff, the department announced the addition of Long Beach Poly to Santa Ana High's 1937 football schedule. The Saints will play Orian Landreth's Jack-rabbits on Burcham field, Long Beach, Saturday afternoon, Oct. 2.

Alvin Stenlund, head of the Beach prep will play at Poly field Friday afternoon, Oct. 8, and the Saints have closed for an Armistice day game with their traditional rivals at Fullerton. Loyola High of Los Angeles is seeking a place on the Santa schedule, and the Orange Panther of the new Sunset League probably will be added, Foote said.

SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

By JOHN BOLES

Guest Columnist for Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—When the usual conductor of this column invited me to take his place for a day, he specified that I should write about myself. He is a trusting fellow, giving free play like that to the actor's favorite subject.

But while he's away I'll try not to abuse his confidence. I'll be business-like and—there's an idea—write about business.

Being the first member of my family to adopt a theatrical career, and the first member not to become a business man, it is natural that I should attempt to run my career just as a business man would run his affairs.

The idea came to me a few years ago when I was floundering around, striving for success in several different theatrical fields without a great deal of success in any.

Picks His Field

Originally I had aspired to become an opera singer and had traveled to New York to the effect. But eventually I gravitated to comic opera, to musical comedy, and then to pictures.

Suddenly I realized that in the various assorted branches of my chosen profession I wasn't getting very far. Then came the determination to see if a career could be put on a successful business basis.

Given up entirely were ideas of becoming a grand opera singer. Musical comedy and light opera were also relegated to the background. In the motion picture field I had been the most successful, and I decided to follow that exclusively.

Limits Output

Next I concluded that I should make only a limited number of pictures each year. Nothing, it seemed to me, would ruin a career so quickly as too many pictures. I have refused to make more than four pictures annually and these are chosen with the utmost caution.

Also I decided to vary the types of pictures in which I should appear. I thought it would be excellent to appear in a comedy, in a drama, and then, possibly, a musical. So far I've been able to follow my "plan," balancing my screen activities.

With this "plan," I hope to stay in motion pictures for some time. But as soon as I feel that my day is done, let me assure you I will retire, as any wise business man would certainly do in equivalent circumstances.

DAM REFUNDING WAY CLEARED

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Reclamation bureau yesterday reached the point at which it could anticipate repayment of the government's $114,000,000 investment in Boulder dam.

Declaring that from now on the dam's electric generators would never be idle, the bureau said that under contracts already in force time full cost of the project would be repaid with 4 per cent interest in 50 years.

Several units of the power plant have been in operation since September, 1936, but not until the present, the bureau said, has the government been in a position to guarantee continuous output and levy the full rate of 1.63 mills per kilowatt hour for this power.

Until yesterday Los Angeles, Burbank, Glendale and Pasadena, Calif., present power purchasers, had been paying half a mill per kilowatt hour, the secondary power rate.

The exterior of Lincoln Memorial at Washington, D. C., is of Colorado yule marble from Rocky Mountain quarries 300 miles west of Denver.

'UNKNOWN' TO BE SAWYER FILM STAR

12-Year-Old Bronx Boy Will Play Lead In Famous Story

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—The typical American boy, a movie producer decided today, is 12-year-old Tommy Kelly, of the Bronx, New York.

He has been selected, and signed to a contract, to play the title role in the film, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." David O. Selznick, of Selznick-International Pictures, announced.

The producer said he brought the boy to Hollywood three months ago, secretly had him coached, and that a screen-test made last week was satisfactory. H. C. Potter, assigned to direct the film, was the boy's instructor.

Selznick said Tommy is one of five children and his father, Michael A. Kelly, has been on WPA rolls for two years. Mrs. Nora Kelly and the other four children are in New York.

Nearly a year ago he scouts for the studio began interviewing boys for the Tom Sawyer role. The producer said that approximately 25,000 were either seen or actually tested. For a time, the picture was shelved, owing to the lack of a star.

Young Master Kelly, who had never seen a camera before, gets the job, Selznick said. The boy is four feet, nine inches tall, weighs 85 pounds, and has light brown hair and blue eyes.

ANOTHER FILM SHOW ROMANCE PAIR TO WED

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Maryon Dorothy Curtis, film actress, and George Givot, radio's "Greek ambassador," tonight will join the June wedding parade in Hollywood.

Friends since school days in Chicago, the couple will be married at the Little Church of the Flowers, leaving later for San Francisco after a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charles Curtis.

Bridesmaids will include Sonja Henie, Norwegian skating star. Among the ushers will be Monte Blue, Tyrone Power, Johnny Downs and George Jessel.

Elopements last week-end made newly-weds of Martha Raye and Buddy Westmore, Bob Burns and Harriet Foster, and Ray Wise, Eskimo actor known as Mala, and Alaina Kropotkin, former stand-in for Claire Trevor.

PEST FIGHT TO END SOON

Spraying for the most effective control of codling moth should be completed within a week, Deputy Agricultural Commissioner Roy Black said today.

"We are recommending that the growers get their work done as soon as possible," Black said. "We are right in the midst of our campaign in the fight against codling moth now, and best results will be obtained by spraying now."

The survey of moth emergence conducted by the agricultural office indicates that the peak of emergence has passed, and that spraying with arsenate of lead spray should be done as soon as possible. If no spraying has been done for aphids, black leaf 40 may be added to the arsenate of lead spray to make a combination spray for aphids and codling moth, Black said.

Move Starts at Culver City To Rename It Hollywood

CULVER CITY, (AP)—Convinced that "Hollywood, Cal." doesn't exist, the Culver City Chamber of Commerce sponsored a movement today to appropriate the name for its community.

Chamber directors pointed out that Hollywood, so-called center of the motion picture industry, has no postoffice, no city government, nor other municipal appurtenances, and less than half the major studios.

Warners and Universal are located in Burbank and Universal City, respectively. Twentieth Century-Fox is in Westwood. And in Culver City are Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Selznick International, Hal Roach and several independents.

Hollywood, the northwestern sector of Los Angeles, was a city of the sixth class from 1903 to 1910, when it consolidated with Los Angeles to share in aqueduct water.

While the chamber of commerce directors ordered the circulation of petitions among voters, two-thirds of whom must signify approval before the name-changing is effective, a new slogan was adopted: "Culver City, where Hollywood movies are made."

A completely new program opens at the West Coast theater today, featuring two entertaining new photoplays.

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, the screen's most talked about real-life sweethearts, are teamed in "This Is My Affair," the story of a love supremely courageous and unshamed which endangers the nation's highest places and gambles life itself for a greater stake. The film provides both Taylor and Miss Stanwyck their finest roles to date.

"This Is My Affair" also furnishes Victor McLaglen, who heads the supporting cast, with the finest opportunity he has had since his famous characterization in "The Informer."

Second feature on the program is "Oh, Doctor!" the Edward Everett Horton laugh riot which was previewed here recently. The picture is crammed with action and fast-paced comedy, and presents Horton in the role of a hypochondriac who sells his birthright for a mess of pills.

PROMOTION AT BROADWAY

Promotion of Doral Kingrey, Santa Ana youth, to the position of assistant manager of the Broadway theater was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain of the Broadway and West Coast theaters.

Kingrey started as an usher at the Broadway theater in July, 1933. Later he was moved to the West Coast theater, where he held the position of doorman.

He now has been promoted to succeed Francis Crews as assistant manager of the Broadway theater, Crews having been advanced to a position of manager of the Curbart theater for Milton Arthur at Long Beach.

Kingrey's successor at the West Coast theater has not yet been named, Fountain said. He is trying to find a local youth for the position, following his policy of attempting to fill all jobs at the theaters with local persons.

Health Food Shop In New Location

The Health Food Center owned and operated by George M. Wright, and which for the past nine years has been located at 304 North Main street, has moved to its new home at 306 West Fourth street, just three doors west of Fourth and Broadway.

The Health Food Center handles foods for better health, carrying all Battle Creek foods and other nationally known health food products, together with a complete line of Bay's home-made candies.

One of the outputs of the Health Food Center is the roasting of all kinds of nuts in its plant, assuring the buyer of freshness.

"I am now better prepared to serve the public than ever before in my nine years in this business," said Wright. "Throughout the years that I have been in this business at 304 North Main street, I am happy to be able to say that I have built up a wonderful business due, I think, to the high class products offered, and also to the sales staff and myself, and I wish to assure all that the same careful attention will be given in the future as has been our policy in the past."

A new low fatality rate was set by coal mines in 1936, 2,568 deaths per million tons of coal mined, as compared with 2,926 in the preceding year.

THREAT NOTE WRITER NOT INDICTED

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—United States District Attorney Joseph Votava today said the government will not prosecute Sterling Powell, 16, Grant, Neb., youth who last year wrote an extortion note to Movie Star Shirley Temple.

Federal agents arrested Powell on the farm of his father a few days after the parents of Miss Temple delivered to government authorities the note, in which Powell asked $25,000 on threat of "injury" to the child star.

Powell gained his freedom on Step Lively, Jeaves, featuring Arthur Treacher.

Teaming Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur, a smart romance, "History Is Made at Night," opens Thursday at Walker's theater for an engagement of three days. On the same bill will be the comedy, "Step Lively, Jeaves," featuring Arthur Treacher.

"History Is Made at Night" pictures Boyer as the most popular head waiter in Europe, and Miss Arthur as a New York mannequin married to a domineering shipping magnate. They meet in Paris under thrilling circumstances, and he follows her to America. They find themselves free to wed when their steamship hits an iceberg, the woman's husband commits suicide, and the head waiter and the girl are rescued.

In the cast with them are Leo Carrillo, Colin Clive, Ivan Lebedeff, George Meeker and Lucian Prival.

Gentle Jeaves, the magnificent English butler, gives America's gangland the jitters as he proceeds to teach mobsters the principles of social decorum in "Step Lively, Jeaves." With Treacher in the cast are Patricia Ellis, Robert Kent, Alan Dinehart, George Givot and Helen Flint.

Rounding out the program there will be a Mickey Mouse cartoon and a newswear.

OPEN EDISON WORK BIDS JUNE 28

Bids for the new Edison school construction work, estimated to cost about $31,000, will be opened by the board of education on June 28.

This was agreed by the board at a meeting last night, when it was decided that bids will be called for in about two weeks from now. The funds for completion of the construction of the Edison school plant are provided for in the school budget for the next fiscal year.

Frederick Eley, architect on the job, presented plans for the job to the school board last night. The board approved the plans as presented.

Some difference of opinion developed between the board and the architect regarding his fees for certain phases of the work. However, a motion was passed approving a contract for the architect, who will be paid 3.5 per cent of the cost of the work. The contractor, however, will provide that all previous contracts between the board and the architects are cancelled.

Another motion was passed authorizing payment of $257 to Eley for work he has done.

Work to be done on the Edison school building will complete the plant. Four new classrooms and administration office rooms will be constructed.

ACTORS APPEAL ON INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The board of tax appeals had before it today the petitions of Elissa Landi and Lee Tracy, movie players, to redetermine deficiencies of $2374 and $1202 assessed by the bureau of internal revenue on their respective income taxes for 1934.

Victor McLaglen, Hollywood actor, and his wife asked the board of tax appeals to redetermine deficiencies of $1993 assessed on the 1934 income of each.

Americans have been eating about the same quantity of food for the last 19 years, department of agriculture statistics show.

His guess of the time the ice won move in the annual spring breakup of the Tanana river at Nenana, and the Chena river at Fairbanks was the closest to the actual time. His guesswork brought him $77,000.

Brea Creek Flood Work Ranks Second in County Plan

COST OF DAM IS SET AT $701,000

Report Shows Local District Cost To Be $90,110

By KENNETH ADAMS
Within the next few years, when the U. S. army engineers have completed eight flood control works for Orange county, this county's flood control problems will be solved.
Providing, of course, that citizens of Orange county take advantage of the government's offer to spend $12,748,000 for constructing the eight dams for the county. And what Orange county must do is vote a bond issue of $2,500,000 to get a $15,248,000 flood control program.
Number 2 project on the list, as outlined in an official report to the board of supervisors by Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson, is the Brea creek project. On this project the government, through its army engineers, will spend $701,000, while Orange county's cost on this one project is but $90,110.

Flood Control First
The report states that the site selected for the construction of an earth-fill dam and retaining basin for the control and conservation of flood waters of Brea creek is located about 2000 feet northerly from the intersection of the state highway 101 and Brea-Fullerton road.

The Brea retaining basin is designed primarily for flood control. Incidental to the purpose, the plan provides for hold-over storage in the lower portion of the reservoir water conservation. The retaining basin is created by the construction of an earth-fill dam with a maximum height of 85 feet, with top width of 15 feet, at elevation No. 293, and will have a crest length of 1275 feet.
The dam will be constructed of earth material with an impervious core of selected material. The slope of the upstream face is three horizontal to one vertical, with a 20-foot berm at elevation No. 250. The upstream face is to be protected with a hand-placed stone paving.

Storage Capacity
Storage capacity of the retaining basin, at spillway elevation 273, is 3300 acre feet. Conservation elevation is confined to a maximum elevation of 248.5 and amounts to 1090 acre feet.
Three orifices, two feet-six inches by three feet-three inches, in the outlet tower, are located at conservation storage level and work in conjunction with two three-foot-six-inch by seven-foot gate-control openings, placed at stream bed elevation.
The control is located in a 14 foot-three inch diameter conduit, having a capacity of 6000 cubic feet per second, when the water is at spillway elevation 273. Conservation control is by the operation of one of the three foot-six inch by seven-foot gates. The maximum peak flow that may occur, 7000 cubic feet per second, can be reduced to 3550 cubic feet per second.
Control works, trash racks and outlet conduits are located in the left abutment, and the outlet conduit is 450 feet in length.
Spillway is an open type concrete lined ogee section, located in the ridge forming the left abutment, with a crest length of 240 feet at elevation No. 273. The material excavated for the construction of the spillway will supply practically the total yardage required for the embankment of the dam.
The orifices provided in the outlet tower are designed to regulate the adopted flood hydrograph until the water level reaches elevation 267, six feet below the spillway crest. Should water rise above this height, the two three-foot-six inch by seven-foot gates will be opened to pass a sufficient quantity to prevent spillway from operating.
Roads Not Affected
No highway or railroad relocation will be required within the proposed reservoir area. It may be necessary, the report says, to construct a protection levee for the Union Pacific railroad on the west side of the reservoir. No other utilities will be affected. Minor roads for farming operations will be subject to flooding at rare intervals only.
On the entire eight projects, of which the Brea creek project is but one, the estimated cost of all lands, etc., to Orange county is $1,352,470, while the estimated cost of construction work to this county is $1,091,240. With incidental expenses of $56,290, this makes up the total of $2,500,000 which is to furnish Orange county's share of the great flood control program.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gray-haired at 63, is most famous as the Rockefeller who put philanthropy on a business basis. But he plays many other parts, too. He was one of the first to get finger-printed when this was urged on American citizens as a protection against criminals. His starring role, however, has been in philanthropy. A sample is the restoration of the chateau at Versailles, France, where he is photographed at right.

FORD FACING WAGNER ACT CHARGES

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—The management of the Richmond plant of the Ford Motor company was charged with violating the Wagner act in a complaint filed yesterday with the national labor relations board.

The complaint was filed by Frank Slaby, president of the Richmond local of the United Automobile Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, which called a strike in the Ford assembly plant there last week.

Alice Rosseter, regional board director, said an investigation would be conducted and a hearing called if the inquiry warranted. The complaint charged the plant management intimidated workers and prevented them from exercising their rights under the Wagner act.

Rare Insects Groomed For Citrus Pest Battle

Two rare insects imported from Africa and now under study here may be the long-awaited parasites which will gobble up red scale, County Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs revealed today.
Attempts in the past to find insects to feed on red scale have been failures, but Tubbs said today the latest addition to the county insectary at Anaheim is showing real promise. Insects have been found which attack black scale.

Most promising is a little gnat which carries the burdensome name of Habbropis Rouxi. Five of these were shipped here April 6 by the University of California, and a second generation of 21 is now being cared for.
Another insect, the Cape Town Beetle, which resembles a lady bug, also promises to be a scale eater, but R. J. Bungardner, who is carrying on the experiments, has been unable to propagate them. The original group are still alive, but there are no offspring.
Tubbs said red scale is the most serious pest for lemons and one of the most serious pests of the entire citrus industry. It has been increasing in Southern California during the past few years despite spraying, fumigation and other control measures.
When a sufficient number of the Habbropis Rouxi gnats have been reared, they will be taken to selected trees in favored locations and given the citrus test.
Many Questions

END NEAR IN REPAIRING OF SEWER

Outfall Maintenance This Year to Cost
$58,518.65

Completion of repair work on the ocean end of the joint outfall sewer was in sight today.

So far this year a total of $58,518.65 has been spent on repairing the sewer line, damaged badly the last time when a barge crashed into the line. Santa Ana's cost is 45 per cent of the total.

All joints of the line now have been set, it was learned, and the crew of repair workers is busy caulking the joints.

Eight joints were replaced in the sewer line and four other big joints did not have to be replaced.

The top part of the line now has been caulked, and the toughest caulking job is under way. This concerns caulking the under part of the sewer line. Shifting sands which pile drifts of sand against the big pipe have caused considerable trouble, making it difficult for divers to get to the pipe to caulk the joints.

A crew of two divers and four assistants now are working on the repair job, which will be finished soon now if no more trouble is encountered.

league has named the same two as their representatives and has appropriated $25 to one representative, which has been the practice of the local league for some time.

The board of education was requested to appropriate another $25 to help with the expense of the second delegate, but no action was taken last night.

National Y. W. C. A. Worker Is Honor Guest at Two Lovely Affairs Yesterday

Mothers and World Leaders Feted by Business Club

Installation of new officers and their annual banquet for their mothers were combined last night by Wrycende Maegden members into a delightful formal party in the Y. W. C. A. rooms, where bouquets of primroses in a delicate shade of orchid-pink lined the long tables. To Mrs. Virginia Fitcher, the retiring president, went the duty of presiding over the opening part of the meeting and extending greetings to the mothers and guests after Miss Mary Howard, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., had delivered the invocation.

Mrs. Mary L. Mayes gave the response to the president's greeting, and Mrs. Fitcher then introduced the guests, who included, in addition to the mothers, Miss Charlotte T. Niven, the guest speaker; Miss Mary A. Dunham, who accompanied her; Mrs. W. D. Guthrie, president of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Howard; Miss Dorothy Decker, and Miss Lena Thomas.

Before the dinner, which was served to 50 members and guests, a string trio composed of Anna Mae Archer, cellist; Pauline Graef Rhoades, pianist, and Faye Spicer, violinist, played a group of numbers, and also had a part on the program following.

The speaker of the evening, Miss Niven, retired recently as general secretary of the World's Council of the Y. W. C. A., and brought to last night's audience a message of interest from the various countries she has visited.

Active in "work all over the world," she took as her subject "Womanhood of the World," showing the work that women are doing, and the scope of work still to be done, in the Orient, in Egypt and Syria, and in other far-away corners of the globe.

How the world depends on women, and has always depended on women, was one of the high points of her interesting talk. Miss Dunham, who came to Santa Ana with Miss Niven, spoke briefly on her work as national Y. W. C. A. secretary.

Erma Baxter Owens, guest soloist, favored with a number of vocal solos after the address, accompanied at the piano by her sister, Miss Leone Baxter.

Concluding event of the evening was the installation of new officers, in which Miss Jean Ena took over the duties of president from Mrs. Fitcher; Roma Mayes succeeded Miss Ena as vice-president; Helen O'Brien succeeded Virginia Anthony Ewing as secretary; Imogene McCauley took over the treasurer's duties from Rose Ethel Lesh; Janice Yetman was installed as membership chairman, succeeding Kay Blank Vaughn; Leone Baxter became program chairman, succeeding Elsie Stensen; Dorothy Jesse assumed financial duties, succeeding Marion L. Minch; and Betty Niedergall succeeded Carolyn Cushing Thomson as social chairman. Miss Genevieve Humiston is advisor of the club. Janice Yetman was dinner chairman.

P-T. A. IN DISTRICT MEET TOMORROW

Mrs. Charles Penniman, state chairman of life membership, and Mrs. Leo Hedges, state chairman of motion pictures, for the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, will be speakers tomorrow morning at the closing meeting of the Fourth District, called for 9:30 a. m. in the Cypress Elementary school.

Registration will be at 9 a. m., according to Mrs. Harry C. Brown, district president. Earnings from the recent state convention are to be given by the delegates, and the Mother Singers will sing.

Newport Harbor High school dramatists will present a peace play, and Louis Van Orman will give an address on moving pictures on "Traffic Safety." Standard certificates and state program awards will also be given out at this time.

Marshmallows Will Mellow All Sorts Of Dishes

Hot dogs, potato salad and toasted marshmallows, everyone has eaten this weird combination on picnics and beach parties and loved it, but this is by no means the extent of the marshmallows' possibilities. They are an all-the-year-around food.

Desserts, especially, offer many uses for marshmallows, although they can be used with entrees and salads. Very clever party favors can be made with marshmallows combined with cloves, pipe-cleaners and small pieces of crepe paper.

Marshmallow Rice Pudding
Ingredients required: Two cups cooked rice (chilled), 1 cup shredded pineapple (drained), 24 marshmallows (cut fine), 1 cup canned cherries (drained), ½ cup sugar, 2 cups whipping cream (whipped). Mix all ingredients except the whipped cream and let stand one hour. Just before serving fold the whipped cream into the mixture. Garnish with candied cherries.

Strawberry Marshmallow Cream
Ingredients required: One package strawberry flavored gelatin, ½ cup boiling water, 1 cup crushed strawberries and juice, 8 marshmallows cut in quarters, ½ cup cream, whipped. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Chill until mixture just begins to thicken. Whip until light and foamy. Add strawberries and juice and whip again. Then add the marshmallows and lastly fold in the whipped cream. Pour into ring mold and chill thoroughly until firm. To serve, fill center of mold with whipped cream.

Chocolate Marshmallow Fudge
Ingredients required: 3 squares chocolate, 3 cups sugar, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 10 marshmallows, cut fine.

Melt the chocolate slowly in a heavy saucepan over a low flame; then add sugar, corn syrup, milk and salt. Mix well and cook to soft ball stage (235 deg. F.). Stir at intervals. Remove from flame and add butter and vanilla extract. Do not stir. Cool until mixture is just lukewarm; then beat until creamy. Add marshmallows and pour in square buttered tins. When cool, cut in squares for serving.

Sweet Potato Croquettes
Ingredients required: 2½ cups mashed sweet potatoes, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 6 marshmallows, ½ cup fine cracker crumbs, 1 egg beaten. Add melted butter, and salt to the mashed sweet potatoes. Then divide this mixture into 6 equal parts. Shape each into a flat disk about as large as the palm of the hand. Lay 1 marshmallow in the center of each disk, and bring the sweet potato up around the sides of it, press together, and shape as for croquette. Then roll in cracker crumbs, dip in the beaten egg, and finally roll again in the crumbs. Fry in deep fat heated to 410 deg. F. for about 2 minutes or until brown. Drain on absorbent paper and serve very hot.

Continuing the shower courtesies which are being inspired by the wedding plans of Miss Lois Lambert and Edwin Magill for the 26th day of this month, Miss Dorothea Dixon and Mrs. Jack Levine honored the bride-to-be last Saturday afternoon at a prettily appointed personal shower in the former's home at 802½ South Parton street.

The party took the form of a luncheon, with card games following and prizes going to Miss Emma Fowler, high, and Miss Lambert, low.

The wedding of the popular young couple, both of whom have lived in the county most of their lives and attended the local schools, is to take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mr. Perry Magill, in West Orange street.

Miss Lambert, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bass of 1117 West Chestnut street, has chosen Miss Maxine Struck to be her maid of honor and Peggy Ann Van Delden, of Anaheim, will attend Mr. Magill as best man.

After their marriage, Mr. Magill, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Eugene Magill of Anaheim, will take his bride to live in Burbank, where he is employed by the Lockheed Aircraft company. He is a graduate of Garden Grove High school.

Since announcement of the wedding date early in May, friends have planned a number of interesting pre-nuptial events in honor of Miss Lambert, who is a popular graduate of Santa Ana High school. Her chosen attendant had the honor of giving the first of the series of showers, and the one on Saturday precedes a number of other lovely courtesies between now and the wedding date.

Fresh, Clean Look Asset In Job Hunt

By JACQUELINE HUNT

Hundreds of lovely young ladies are getting their diplomas and after a brief pause may be away, eager as new butterflies to try their wings. They will be looking for jobs, meeting new men and having new adventures.

I think the most valuable subject we can teach the young girl is the value of fastidiousness about her person. That fresh, clean look—sparkling eyes and teeth, silky, fragrant hair, clear skin and immaculate hands—is her greatest asset. Show her how to achieve it, you mothers and teachers!

A clear, smooth skin is most important. If she is troubled with occasional blemishes, or with a more serious case of acne, take her to the family doctor and ask his advice about diet and medication. See that she gets all the sun and outdoor exercise she can in the few weeks of freedom that follow the close of school.

If you have your doctor's permission, give her lunches entirely of big generous salads and vegetables. See that she gets one or two cooked vegetables, a small serving of potatoes or a small serving of lean meat, fresh or stewed—unsweetened fruit for dessert and milk as a beverage.

See that she gets lots of fresh fruit and fruit juice for breakfast times a day. These with and between meals. These with milk, help to adjust any calcium deficiency that might be a contributing cause to the spread of the infection in the first place.

Teach her the necessity of the daily bath for cleanliness and health. Daily bathing is especially essential where there is a case of acne.

The face and hands must be scrubbed thoroughly two or three times a day. Have her use warm, soapy water for this. Then rinse the skin thoroughly and splash it with ice-cold water for stimulation. All rich, oil creams should be avoided if there are skin blemishes of any kind.

Simple to Make This Clever Slip Cover

A slip cover as practical as it's lovely. A cinnamon crash for the parts that soil easily—a sunny yellow for parts that don't. And so easy to make!

Or you may prefer to combine light and dark shades of green or to get a stunning contrast with crimson and natural linen. But no matter how you combine colors, use a darker material to bind the seams—also to accent the smart cut of the flounce.

To make, just smooth the material over the upholstery. Pin down every 3 inches. Leave a 4-inch tuck-in between seat and back. You cut outside the pins, allowing 1½ inches for seams. Baste, try on, stitch; then bind the seams. The flounce you add last of all.

Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step instructions and diagrams easy to follow for slip covers for all types of chairs and sofas. How to estimate, fit and finish. New color schemes.

Send 10c for your copy of How to Make Slip Covers to The Journal, Home Service, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

JEROME LAUDS LEGISLATORS

Back from attending the legislature at Sacramento, W. C. Jerome, former county official, today paid praise to the record of Orange county's three legislators—Senator Harry C. Westover, Santa Ana, and Assemblymen Clyde Watson of Orange and Thomas Kuchel of Anaheim.

"Orange county can be proud as a whole of these three men in the present legislature," said he.

Jerome, who was at the capital as the representative of the State Association of County Mutual Fire companies, stated that in his opinion the two most important actions of the legislature were the oil bill and the revenue bond act.

Under the revenue act, public ownership in California will be able to take great strides, he explained.

Two important matters went undone, however, declared the Santa Ana. One was remedial labor mediation and the other was a satisfactory welfare system.

There will be an "open house" program at the Breakfast club tomorrow morning. Paul Elliott will present his quartet, and Ray Ramon, the official pianist, has a number of selections hidden under the ivories.

Shaking Palsy Is Chronic

By CLAUD N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Shaking palsy is a chronic, slowly progressive disorder, whose cause is not known. It follows St. Vitus' dance. In a great many instances it may not appear for years, until long after the patient and his friends have forgotten the earlier disease.

Injuries and mental shock often seem to be the causes. It is more common in men than in women and seldom occurs before the age of forty-five.

The first indications of the condition appear as a tremor, usually of the hands or fingers.

It becomes better or worse, but slowly develops, spreading to the entire hand and arm, then to the foot and leg of the same side. It may remain for a time on one side, but slowly the other side becomes affected.

The tremor slowly involves the head and jaw and sometimes the tongue. It disappears during sleep. Gradually stiffness of the hands and arms comes on. Rigidity of the face gives a masked expression, the body assumes the posture of a bent old person, both head and trunk bending forward, leaving the arms to dangle out to the side. The thumb retracts into the palm, with the fingers bent over it.

Due to stiffness, all movement is slow. In walking, the feet drag and shuffle. When the disease is far advanced, a peculiar thing happens to the gait. The patient starts off slowly, leaning forward, but the gait becomes more rapid until he is running.

The face does not change with emotion, but is masked, though anger or displeasure may cause it to flush. The loss of movement is not a paralysis, but is the result of stiffness.

Some pain may be present in the arms and hands. Burning sensations and sweating are common. Salivation and drooling from the mouth are, unfortunately, common.

Patients are not affected mentally but they often become fussy, irritable and unreasonable. Treatment consists of good, pleasant surroundings, good food and general care. Excitement and physical exertion should be avoided. Stimulating baths and massage are a great comfort.

Mild electricity often helps temporarily. Sedative drugs are effective to control the tremor. When pain is severe, opium may be required to control it.

Helpful Hints To Hostesses

Suppose you are giving a pre-nuptial luncheon? Two tables of close friends for bridge, and you want to make it a little bit extra special. Here is a menu that can be prepared almost entirely ahead of time. Only the entrée takes last minute supervision. Serve a crab cocktail, broiled mushrooms and ham slices, buttered asparagus, (or cold asparagus with mayonnaise), spiced apricots, hot rolls, strawberry mousse, coffee, and maybe nuts and mints.

Crab Cocktail

2 cups crab.
1½ cups finely-chopped celery.
3 tablespoons sweet pickle relish.
¼ cup finely-chopped cucumbers.

¼ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
1½ cups stiff mayonnaise.

Mix 3 tablespoons mayonnaise with the rest of the ingredients. Chill. Serve in small cups lined with shredded lettuce. Top with rest of the mayonnaise and garnish with cress.

Broiled Mushrooms and Ham

8 thin slices boiled ham.
16 large mushrooms.
4 tablespoons butter.
8 slices tomatoes.
8 slices bacon.

8 rings green peppers.
8 strips pimientos.
¼ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.

2 tablespoons lemon juice. Place ham on flat pan and top with remaining ingredients. Broil 10 minutes, basting frequently. Carefully remove to serving platter and garnish with parsley.

Strawberry Mousse

1 cup crushed berries.
1 cup granulated sugar.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin.
¼ cup cold water.

1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 cups whipped cream. Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Dissolve over boiling water and cool. Mix sugar and berries and stir until well blended. Add juice, gelatin mixture and vanilla. Pour into tray in mechanical refrigerator. When half frozen add the whipped cream and freeze until stiff.

Mary Stoddard High School Students Are Too Young to Be Bound By Engagement Rings, Promise

By MARY STODDARD

A high school lad's heart is breaking! He's deeply in love with a sweet girl student. They're engaged and here's the cause of all the trouble. The maid, like a baby chick, is beginning to discover that she has wings and she wants to fly. She flirts with other young men and quarrels with her youthful fiancé. I feel truly sorry for this tortured young man because perhaps never is a later love affair so deadly serious as the first. I feel sorry that this splendid chap doesn't realize that Cupid's darts won't solve algebraic equations—that he's wasting perfectly good time and deliberately shutting himself away from the wholesome amusements that help youth to maintain its equilibrium.

In other words, high school students should be chums, pals, companions, or anything you want to call it, but they should not be engaged!

Here is the story of the serious chap and the young maid who is not in love with him or anyone else at this time:

Dear Miss Stoddard: Please set my mind at rest on a problem that is torturing my bewildered brain.

I love a girl who professes to love me. Lately I have begun to doubt. The reasons for my doubting her love for me are maybe immature or insensible. Nevertheless, they are real enough to me and I will not be able to breathe in peace until they are straightened out.

I am engaged to this girl who is still in high school. She has always been quiet and reserved until lately. She's been going around with a group of girls who chase the popular boys for their pins and athletic sweaters. To make a long story short my fiancée is getting the same way. I have faced her several times with the fact that she is engaged to me and for that reason should not persist in making a poor name for herself. I have told her I didn't mind her having a date with other respectable fellows occasionally. She denies that she wants to, but persists in flirting with the boys at school.

The last few weeks she deliberately starts quarrels and the continually bickering is killing something inside of me.

Please advise me what to do. Should I insist that we break our engagement? I love her so much that this would break my heart. Or should I bear with her patiently until she comes to her senses? Thank you.

TORTURED.
Your young girl friend is in love with life. It is deplorable, though, that she would cheapen herself by flirting and running around after the boys, because she is hurting herself more than she can you or anyone else. Boys and girls of high school age are not matured mentally or physically, therefore, they are not really competent to comprehend the seriousness of matrimony which in turn takes us back to the real answer that they should not be engaged.

What can or should you do about it? Let her read your letter and my answer and have a new understanding with her. Put your relationship on a new, but firm, foundation—that of friendship. Use your influence as a friend to lead her away from the silly, thoughtless groups she is apeing.

Then, if several years later, this youthful attraction lasts and grows into love, you will both know it and you will no longer quarrel or misunderstand one another. If not, and either or both of you find the one you really love, there will be no bitterness or unhappy memories of a youthful friendship that should be sweet.

Dear Miss Stoddard: I've been so busy with my daughter's wedding that I haven't even had the time to give you a personal "Thank you" for your very kind write-ups as regards my problem.

Those letters your readers wrote me were wonderful, too. Even though they were total strangers they made one feel like one has a host of unknown friends. I appreciate so much the ones who offered to adopt me into their homes.

Not so long ago I chanced to notice one of your correspondents wondered what I had decided to do, so perhaps there are others also who would like to know. I am still going to "try it alone" and learn to like it, too. Others have done it, so why can't I. I will let you know how I succeed.

Sincerely,

"JUST WONDERING."

For Supper On First Hot Night

By JUDITH WILSON

Hot weather is coming, you know, even though we begin to doubt it on these foggy, blustery May days which lie up to June.

And when they come, your standby salads that have served so well during the months just past, will look just too stuffy and heavy for a summer evening. Your attention will turn to fruits in season and to the lighter delicacies offered on the vegetable stands, and you'll be racking your brains for new ideas and combinations.

Perhaps these two suggestions will help you:

Avocado Pear Salad
Cut avocados in halves. Peel and remove stones. Place on a plate, ½ pear for each serving and surround with tiny crisp leaves from the heart of the lettuce. Fill the hollow of the pear halves with the following dressing: Blend the juice of 1 lemon, ¼ cup olive oil, 1 teaspoon paprika, a few drops onion juice, salt and pepper to taste. A simple variation is to fill the hollows of the pears with orange sections, then drizzle the pear with the dressing.

Arrange a large crisp lettuce leaf on each salad plate. Arrange orange sections in a large ring on the lettuce. Arrange half a pear, slices of banana and strawberries in the center. Serve with mayonnaise.

FRUIT DESSERT SALAD
Arrange a large crisp lettuce leaf on each salad plate. Arrange orange sections in a large ring on the lettuce. Arrange half a pear, slices of banana and strawberries in the center. Serve with mayonnaise.

DORCAS CLUB
Dorcas club of the First Christian church will have its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday in the educational building of the church.

RICHLAND LADIES
Richland Avenue Methodist church Ladies' Aid society will have an all-day meeting tomorrow at the church bungalow, with a pot-luck luncheon at noon.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER DINNER
Mothers and daughters are to be honored by the junior college Y. W. C. A. tomorrow night at a banquet at 6:30 o'clock at the Doris-Kathryn tearoom.

China will send its parcel post to western Europe through Soviet territories instead of by sea as heretofore.

GAINES

Now let us, for a few brief minutes, consider the cast of the suffering seal.

From two towns, Newport and Laguna, come anguished squeals about seals. Seal squealers mainly are chiefs of police and other city officials, who don't like the way things are run and think there oughta be a law.

On account of the seal-burying situation, which I've mentioned much in this department. You see, when a defunct seal lion washes upon the municipal beach, visitors run for cover with tightly-clasped noses and vow never to come to that particular beach again, which is bad for business.

And not only that, but the seal internment division is kept working overtime, which is extremely expensive for the cities.

So that, for some reason or other, is why we're going to discuss the situation.

From Laguna Chief of Police Abe Johnson and Judge Gavy Cravath moan piteously. The chief because his boys must go out and wield shovels to remove odoriferous visitors and the judge because bullets aimed at seals bounce from his homestead.

From Newport, Frank Crocker, the life guard and firefighting man, also moans and moans. And he has reason!

He says that the Laguna situation is as nothing compared to his problem. He points out that while Laguna buries only a few seals each month, his panting performers must make the dirt fly virtually day and night. More than 200 of the monstrous mammals have been placed beneath the sand already this year, and the season's just starting!

But I still haven't reached what I've been aiming for. I was going to talk about seals generally instead of seals dead and dying at Newport and Laguna.

I'm about to convey a warning, and children, I'm one of the best warning-conveyors in the business, so beware! You who stoeth seals, you're flirting with the law, which'll get ya and will be exceedingly mean and nasty, because judges simply detest seal-shooters.

It seems there are some seals one can shoot and some one can't shoot. Don't think I'm being foolish and am going to point out that you shouldn't shoot those which are close to judges' houses so the bullets'll bounce off. There are two kinds—the California seal, which is short-necked and has a bumpy forehead and the sea lion, which are protected, yes, very much.

The California variety, I understand, may be potted by anyone with a gun and a hate against seals. But the sea lions, which have a long, slender neck, and which use their rear flippers for walking, they're not to be touched or the fish and game patrolmen'll get yuh, sure.

Also when angry boatmen blast away at smaller varieties, they may be shooting a northern hair seal, which shouldn't be shot, or something.

There doesn't seem to be a moral to all that, or anything, but I'll seal yuh later, anyway!

Have you noticed the beans? Or are you interested?

The beans, which farmers plant so they can sell 'em to other people to eat so the can get money to buy beans for supper, are sprouting!

Acres and acres in the Westminster and Midway City and Costa Mesa districts are popping up. Pretty sight, if you like beans.

Who started this, anyway? Harry Welch, harborite who steers the Newport chamber of commerce along a straight course, received a surprise not so long ago.

We got to talking about checks that hadn't been cashed for a long time. Harry Hyde had found one several years old and was wondering if it still was worth anything.

And Harry remembered receiving a letter from a postmaster in Arizona, telling him they had erected a new building, and in moving furniture, they found a check from Welch for postage, dated in 1915!

They were, the postmaster said, going to frame the check, but Harry was wondering if he wanted his money!

Will someone in Yorba Linda tell me what happened to the old fire bell?

Here a year or so ago progressive residents were going to remove the old fire bell and put in its place a modern siren. A lot of us heaved sighs, remembering midnight expeditions to ring that old noisemaker.

And then nobody said much about it for a long time. Is the bell still there?

Fred Barnes, aged 66, who had never learned to swim during his 28 years as coxswain of the Sel-sey, Eng., lifeboat crew, was rescued recently by the lifeboat when his fishing boat capsized.

FULLERTON BOARD RUSHES STREET-WIDENING PROGRAM

ELIMINATION OF HAZARD IS SOUGHT

Commonwealth Avenue To Be Improved; Airport Lease Is Ordered

FULLERTON.—Continued progress on securing rights-of-way for widening of West Commonwealth avenue beyond the bottleneck at about the 500 block, was reported at the meeting of the Fullerton city council Tuesday night in the council chambers.

City Attorney Raymond Thompson outlined plans of handling property settlements, and was authorized to continue the policy adopted. In answer to some questions of property holders concerning a lighting district, the council adopted a resolution declaring they have no intention to promote a program of lighting in that district. The inquiries indicated the property owners feared such an expensive program.

Herman Hiltcher, city engineer, made it clear that the funds to be used in the street broadening are from the gas tax, and can be used only for street improvement.

City Attorney Thompson and Lloyd Verry, with a committee of councilmen, T. K. Gowen and Hans Kohlenstein, were appointed by Mayor Harry Maxwell to work out terms of a lease of the city property on West Commonwealth avenue as an airport. It was agreed to lease certain of the property to the chamber of commerce.

Needs for a new tower for drying fire hose were presented, and Grover Walters, of the city water department, was asked to submit figures for reconstruction as well as for building a new tower.

Orange Pioneer's Rites Are Held

ORANGE.—Funeral services for Mrs. Ethel Otto, 43, who died Sunday at a local hospital, were held Tuesday morning at the Shannon Funeral home, with the Rev. Arthur T. Hobson, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. J. H. McCabe, Garden Grove.

The late Marcus Trent has left a million dollars to his nephew, Rodney Burton, provided he is unmarried when he reaches twenty-five. Otherwise, it goes to a society headed by J. Montrose Pettigrew. Rodney is leading an isolated life, with his friend, Jim Matthews, in the mountains near Gunnison, Colorado, where he is studying Indian stone relics, or artifacts. He is not to be informed of the terms of the will. Pettigrew hires Sari Saunders to go to Gunnison and maneuver him into marriage before his twenty-fifth birthday, a month away. Trent's lawyer dispatches Judy Collins to Gunnison to thwart this scheme, and Judy's fiancé sends his sister Maureen, unknown to Judy, to see what she is up to. When Sari becomes engaged to Rodney, Maureen is dismayed as Judy, for Maureen has fallen in love with him. Judy nearly thwarts Sari by showing Rodney that she has tricked him, but Sari quickly patches things up, and the engagement still holds.

CHAPTER XXVI MAUREEN was as dismayed as Judy over the reestablishment of the engagement between Rodney and Sari. "It's a shame!" she declared vehemently when Judy told her about finding him blissfully engaged in studying Felipe's method of chipping arrowheads from rock.

"He's such a fool!" Judy grated. "Maureen, grin at this. I'm isn't it just that Sari— " "He is a fool!" Judy persisted. "Any man's a fool to let a woman wrap him around her finger. " "It's because he's the soul of honor," protested Maureen. "His eyes must surely be opened after the way Sari tricked him, but he feels honor-bound to stick to the engagement." "The age of chivalry is long past," Judy pointed out. "Rodney doesn't know it. I think it's pathetic. He's the finest, dearest man I know. The first real gentleman I ever met." Judy said, "Okay, okay," wearily. "He's a perfect gentleman. So what?"

Red flamed in Maureen's cheeks. "So he needs to be protected from girls like Sari and— " Maureen hesitated. "And me?" Judy finished for her, with a short laugh. "Yes!" Maureen was defiant about it. "Both of you have badgered him until the poor boy does not know up from down." "With Sari taking all the tricks," commented Judy sourly. She was thoughtful a moment. Then, suddenly, she caught her breath sharply, and looked at Maureen with a light in her eyes. "Believe it or not, an idea has come to me!"

Maureen studied her suspiciously. "An idea to circumvent the machinations of Sari?" "Yes, it's—no, I won't tell you yet, but it's marvelous! It can't fail. I'll have to work out the details, and I may need a little help." Maureen said suddenly. "This is all like a jumbled jigsaw puzzle. It's driving me wild!" "Not any wilder than it's driving me," Judy assured her. "Why don't you tell me what it's all about?" Maureen replied. "What what?" all about? "Don't keep evading the issue! Why are you so determined to prevent Rodney's marriage to Sari? It's perfectly clear that you don't care for him yourself so your motive isn't jealousy. What is your motive?"

For a moment, Judy was on the verge of making a clean breast of everything. She was longing to explain the situation to Maureen, for Maureen was growing suspicious.

Finally, in the teeth of the rising wind, with a heavy downpour of rain threatened at any minute, Judy set out in the darkness for the isolated mountain cabin where a chivalrous young scientist sat alone with his artifacts, all unconscious of the adventure in store for him.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING ALONG ORANGE COUNTY'S COASTLINE

COUNTY SEINING LAW TO BE SOUGHT FOR COASTLINE

Newport-Balboa Workers Take Different Tack In Battle Against Destruction of Game Fish; Supervisors' Aid Sought

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Opening guns in a "war to the death" against commercial net fishermen along the Southern California coastline were fired here today following a meeting of beach preservationists, when local residents were urged to start a move for a county ordinance prohibiting seining within county boundaries.

Through institution of such a move, arrests could be made and the battle to preserve sport fishing from destruction could be carried to the state supreme court, if necessary, it was pointed out. Many residents here believe that a county ordinance would give authorities control over purse-seiners which annually take a huge toll of sport fish along the Orange coastline, with nearly all operations within the three-mile limit.

Meanest Thief Steals Music From Balboa Man

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—John Vogel, prominent local businessman, may have to sing for his supper after this.

Vogel reported to local police that a thief ran away with eight books containing 12 phonograph records each from Balboa's amusement center. The records were used to furnish music through a public address system.

So, without records, he must seek other means of obtaining music for his customers.

CLUB INDORSES CENTER PLAN

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—A plan proposed by the city council to erect a building in Recreation park for a playground and recreation center was endorsed by the local Woman's club at a meeting of its executive board today, according to Mrs. Walter Dabney, president.

The building would include one large room to be used for activities such as children's handicrafts in the daytime, and adult parties in the evening.

The board also allocated a sum for beautification of the clubhouse grounds. Members of the board, also members of the Garden club, were appointed to form a supervising committee. Headed by Mrs. J. K. McDonald, they are Mesdames J. W. Bristol, Frank Deeburg, Owen Mosier, D. R. White and Walter Dabney.

Other members present at the meeting were Mesdames F. E. Brooks, M. G. Jones, Thomas Berry, John Waage, W. H. Jones, Fred Pickering and L. H. Beningsdorf.

BEACH WATER WORK STARTS

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Construction work on a new reservoir to store domestic water for the Newport Heights Irrigation district, southeast of Costa Mesa, will start in the near future.

Word has been received by local WPA officials of the allocation of funds by the government for the project, which will cost the government $4114 and the sponsor $5089.

A total of 62 men will be given work for about one month on the WPA project.

Mesa Club To Meet on Friday

COSTA MESA.—Friday afternoon club members will hold their final meeting of the summer next Friday, at which time officers will be installed. The meeting will begin with luncheon at 12:30, followed by the regular business session.

Reservations for the luncheon should be made with either Mrs. C. G. Huston or Mrs. J. O. Tallman.

Mesa Library Increase Told

COSTA MESA.—Book loans during the past month showed a substantial gain over the same period last year. Miss Sarah Copland, custodian of the Orange county branch library here, reported today.

A total of 2419 loans, including 1184 adult-fiction; 497 non-fiction; 426 juvenile and 302 periodicals and pamphlets, were made, she said. Twenty-two new members were added.

Clemente Girl Is Honored

Guests were Miss Marian Bruner, Mrs. Norman Hicks, Miss Mary Glenn, Miss Catherine Walbridge, Mrs. M. S. Rich, Mrs. John Fate, Mrs. Mary Neddermeyer and the hostess and the guest of honor.

VISIT FRIENDS

COSTA MESA.—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dudek spent the week-end with friends in the Imperial valley.

Williamson To Attend Meeting In Los Angeles

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—Mayor Harry H. Williamson is planning to attend the Southwest regional conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Los Angeles June 11.

The conference will be held all day in the Ambassador hotel and will include numerous conferences on problems confronting real estate operators in California. Mayor Williamson will attend as state director from the local real estate board.

F. D. R. CONFERS ON SPAIN WAR

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt invited three of his leading diplomatic advisors to a White House luncheon conference today for a general discussion of the European situation.

Secretary Hull, Undersecretary Sumner Welles and Norman H. Davis, ambassador at large to Europe, were asked to call soon after the President returned from a three-day visit to his Hyde Park, N. Y., estate.

White House officials said the conference would touch upon the general situation abroad, including all angles of the incident stirred by the bombing of the German battleship Deutschland and the bombardment of the Spanish port of Almeria.

The President also lost little time in grappling with domestic questions. He summoned several departmental and congressional representatives and completed a special message to be sent congress tomorrow recommending a comprehensive national resources planning program.

Bill Defeated

The moves to bring purse-seining under control along the coastline followed in the footsteps of the state assembly turning down Assemblyman Clyde Watson's fish sanctuary bill, which would have created a two-mile preserve and would have prohibited all seining in the area.

Previously, Orange county legislators had pushed through a bill calling for a three-mile limit, and a number of arrests were made, but one fisherman carried his case to the fourth district court for appeal, where the law was declared unconstitutional on a technicality. About $2500 was returned to fishermen in fine money by local judges following the verdict.

WILKIE BATTLE END IS SEEN

LAGUNA BEACH.—The end of a 13-week controversy is expected tonight when the city council will decide on the "night-patrol" ordinance which has been hanging fire ever since Capt. Don Wilkie, criminologist and operative, applied for permission to watch property and conduct a merchants' protective organization.

The proposed ordinance, which gives the police chief authority as to choosing of night watchmen working in the employ of anyone operating a protective patrol, and makes it unlawful for a night patrol to be run without considerable bonding and insurance, would, according to Wilkie, make his business an object of ridicule. "That gives me the privilege," Wilkie brought out in discussing the ordinance, "of being the hiring of the police chief."

The ordinance has been drafted with existing Santa Ana and San Jose laws in mind, City Attorney G. H. Harvey has explained. It is Wilkie's contention that certain clauses in the ordinance that restrict the regime of one patrol in districts which are not already covered by other patrols are unfair, and discriminating against his "a legal business which is comparable to warehouse operation, the drug business, or any other enterprise."

Mesa Club Group Has Installation

COSTA MESA.—Election and installation of officers was the chief business at the final meeting of the Arts and Crafts section, Tuesday, Mrs. Merwin J. Flicks being chosen to head the group for another year.

Mrs. Flicks announced appointment of Miss Alice Plummer, secretary-treasurer and Nell Murbarger, publicity chairman, but will not name vice-chairman and hospital-ity chairman until the group resumes meetings in the fall.

Present were Mesdames S. A. Meyer, C. G. Huston, Louise Bechtold, L. B. Smalley, Paul Fisher, W. G. Walker, Nell Murbarger, Emily Plummer, A. B. Craig, J. C. Payne, L. C. Bixler, Merwin J. Flicks, John Cooper, H. H. Thayer, J. O. Tallman, George Merrick, J. A. Gardner and Miss Alice Plummer.

While pickets mobilized in South Chicago for a fresh drive to close the Republic Steel corporation's main plant and make the steel strike low per cent effective in the Calumet area, other strikers maintained picket lines at the Chicago factory. Here a picket displays his sentiments a la bicyclist.

BUILDING AT PORT HITS $500,000

NEWPORT-BALBOA.—With the $500,000 mark in building passed during the past month, local builders were pointing toward a million-dollar year for new homes in the harbor area today.

More than 100 new homes have been built in the harbor district since Jan. 1, City Building Inspector A. M. Nelson said today. Permits totalling $111,120 were issued during the month of May, boosting this year's total to $519,614, he announced.

Figures last year showed a slightly stronger month during May, with $114,474 on the city's books, but a lower early total, with $380,416 recorded. Last year's 12-month total was $766,089.

As a comparison with this year, Nelson recalled that in May, 1935, only $56,405 in permits were issued, while the year's total reached a record for that time of $479,440, which already has been surpassed this year.

Buildings this year show a trend toward family residences, it was announced, with two- and three-car garages. A number of apartment houses and two-family dwellings have been constructed and a number more are planned before the summer ends.

Also noticeable in building permits were those for extensive remodeling work, the inspector said. Many homes are running as high as $25,000 for such work. Numerous additions of one and two rooms to present homes were authorized during the spring months, when residents were preparing for the summer stay at the beach, he added.

That business is not falling behind home building was indicated in permits for a number of store buildings, also during the early spring, he added.

HENRI CHRISTOPHE

A slave child of Grenada, in the West Indies, Henri Christophe ran away from his master at the age of 12, induced a French sailing master to take him to the island of Saint Domingue as Haiti was called when a French possession, and was sold in the slave market to a young naval officer. Attached to the fleet which France was sending to the aid of the American forces in their fight for independence, Henri Christophe's new master took him aboard his ship. On October 9, 1799, the battle of Savannah took place. The slave had served on the American side. Returning to St. Domingue, Christophe worked in an inn for several years, joined a movement of the blacks to overthrow their masters and became a divisional commander in the insurrection. The French were eventually driven from the island and Dessalines, the negro leader, became Jean Jacques the Premier, first emperor of Haiti. His reign ended in assassination by his own troops and Henri Christophe took over the government as President. Later he had himself crowned Henri I, king of Haiti. A golden bullet fired through his brain by his own hands ended his reign in 1820 when the fickle Haitians rose in rebellion against him.

Cat and Kittens "Pose" for You

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Simple Embroidery Makes Appealing Picture or Pillow

PATTERN 5859

Proud "Tabby" and her kittens make wonderful objects for stitchery, for with a minimum of stitches you can produce something so realistic it will amaze you. Plan the motifs as shown—the full figure for a pillow top, the kitten "twins" side by side in a picture, or vice versa. It's simple 8-to-the-inch cross stitch which, done in silk, cotton or wool, is particularly effective if a variety of colors is used. In pattern 5859 you will find a transfer pattern of a pair of heads 7½x11½ inches and a kitten 6½x7½ inches; color chart and key; material requirements; illustration of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Journal, Household Arts Department, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Calif. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Wanted: Expert City Planning

WHEN the people of Santa Ana decided to build a new city hall, they hired an architect to draw the plans.

They didn't say, "We've been living in buildings all our lives, so we ought to know how to build one without an architect's help. We don't want professional advice."

No, indeed. They realized the importance of getting a good building—one designed by an expert to be efficient, comfortable and safe. And they considered it good economy to pay for such services.

The same situation exists in regard to city planning. There is a tendency among some officials to think that Santa Ana does not need expert advice in planning its streets, arterial roads, parks and zones for future growth.

These people say, "We've lived here a long time. We know more about the town than some outside engineer, even though he makes a business of city planning. We will plan the town ourselves."

But in reality they are no more qualified by training to lay out the city than they were to lay out the city hall.

It takes a scientifically trained engineer who has had experience with civic planning in other communities—one who has some background and experience in his own line.

Amateurs may be smart and willing, but they simply don't know enough about this particular thing.

The Journal is not suggesting that the city council and the planning commission appoint any one particular individual to make the proposed survey of our municipal needs. We have no favorite. All we ask is that the officials hire somebody to do the job who knows what city planning is all about instead of getting an amateur or trying to do it themselves.

We believe that the city should work with the planning boards of the county and other Orange county communities in this matter, so that some uniform, interlocking program may be devised.

Otherwise, we may go on as we have in the past, making costly and avoidable mistakes, such as: Blocking off the extension of important streets by building houses in their path, forcing arterial traffic into narrow bottle-necks because the setback line is not adequate, permitting business establishments in what should be residential areas and vice versa, failing to provide space for parks and playgrounds which already are so badly needed here, and so forth.

Santa Ana is growing. Our population might easily gain another 15,000 in the next 10 years. It's time to start preparing for the day when we have 50,000 or 100,000 citizens.

The cheapest civic insurance that we can get in anticipation of this growth is to hire a good consultant and have him make an intelligent survey of our municipal needs and a broad gauge report on how best to take care of them.

Who Pays the Taxes?

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT takes a vigorous swat at the tax-dodging millionaire in his latest speech to congress. Asking prompt action, he charges "that avoidance and evasion of tax liability" is so amazing and so bold that something must be done at once.

His complaint brings up the old question of "Who pays the taxes?"

Here are a few statistics of income for 1935 published by the U. S. bureau of internal revenue, which you may find interesting:

Number of federal income taxpayers, 2,067,736.
Number of taxpayers with incomes less than $5,000, 1,592,794; their total tax, $44,763,000.

Revenue from the 474,962 taxpayers with incomes more than $5,000, $609,353,000.

Number of single adults and family heads eligible if all incomes were taxed, about 38,000,000.

If these figures were all there is to the picture, we might interpret them as proving that the rich support the government. For they show that the breadwinners of about 95 per cent of the population pay no federal income taxes whatever, that about 3½ per cent pay only an unsubstantial amount, and that the remaining 1½ per cent pay the lion's share.

But there is one more statistic that is pertinent:

During the same period the government collected approximately $2,500,000,000 in various sales and nuisance taxes, processing levies and customs duties.

The great bulk of these were paid by the 95 per cent of the population which paid nothing in income taxes.

As the President says, the rich tax dodger should be stopped by all means.

But Mr. Roosevelt should remember that unless he speedily economizes and puts the United States government on a balanced budget, such as so many of the world's nations, little and big, enjoy—tax evasion and the attendant evils will increase not only among the rich but also among the great masses—the 95 per cent—of the people.

Then he will be up against something harder to control than the late lamented prohibition. And instead of having to put a curb on a small minority of the rich, he will have virtually the entire nation to force under the yoke.

When the public decides that it is spending too much for government, it will find a way to cut down its tax bill—whether this method is legal or illegal.

Just a $2 Traffic Violation

A WEEK ago Mrs. James King was killed in a crash at Chapman and Dale roads. The coroner's jury said it was because her husband failed to make a boulevard stop.

Yesterday her husband died from injuries suffered in the same wreck.

Yet some Southern California judges do not consider boulevard stop jumping a major traffic violation. The average fine for the offense is only $2.50. Here in Santa Ana it is even less than that—$2.

With
O. O.
MCINTYRE

No entertainer has more successfully withstood the collective Broadway boo than the young comedian, Milton Berle. Because of his fresh manner he has from his beginnings been a thorn in the side of the critics. Others like him have been vanquished by scorn, but not Berle.

He carried on with impudent grin—rising from coffee and cakes to a several-thousands-a-week performer. In many ways he expresses the same brashness that once characterized the now sedate and well beloved George M. Cohan when he was yowling his Yankee Doodle stuff.

Berle's career might well be labeled The Rise of a Smart Alec. Yet those who know him say it was only a part of his act. Away from the footlights he is unusually shy, and despite his feigned sophistication is a typical mama's boy. She is his constant companion.

He went into the old Palace as a fill-in act and wound up a headliner held over for many weeks. He then wowed them in cabarets, landed a top bracket job on the radio, and later was taken to Hollywood to be featured in films. And at 30 is rich enough to rest on his oars.

There is a gaiety about those perky open-until-2-a.m. hat and gown shops upstairs over Broadway and around the side street corners in the 40's. Each is staffed with a Peter Arno type of proprietor, known as "Modom," and a bright girl assistant or so. Most of the customers are show and cabaret girls who drop in between or after shows, usually with a boy friend, to pick up a few bargains. The moment the girls and their beaux enter flattery is turned on, faucet-like. The big play is to the boy friends—and he is given "the works," often so expertly he finds himself on the business end of a half a dozen purchases when he only intended to look around.

Few virtues are more appealing than frankness. At a dinner to several intimates the other night the host, whose spread was sumptuous, had a jar of buckskin-sized Beluga caviar at his plate side which he alone dipped into. Nor did he offer to share it. As he made his third canape, he explained: "This is my sole extravagance, and I never share it. Only one in a thousand has the taste for caviar anyway." Somehow we all warm to a such forthrightness, even though it is a violent digression from ordinary courtesy.

From Fred Niblo: "Your sympathetic comment on William Faversham with his 'chin up' and many other Favershams going over the lost horizons with heads high painted a picture that few of the younger world will understand. It was fine. Every day at the Lambs and Players there are vanquished valiants of the stage who have been unable, as have so many, to indulge in the bounties of Hollywood. Most of them are living in far away rooming houses, several flights up and all the way back, but there is never a whimper. They give the impression that, so far as they are concerned, everything is on the up and up."

Charles Phelps Cushing, one of the Kansas City Star alumni, is probably the dean of New York free lances. For a quarter century he has been prowling about the metropolis with camera and note pad—catching unusual views and picking up stray stories of interest. A pipe smoking bachelor, he has spent most of his time in the city in a West Side apartment. His own boss and doing only the things he really wanted to do, he expresses the true spirit of the free lance.

Bill Corum picking up a bullet in the hip and a few Page 1 headlines at a dawnish hour a recent morning shows what can happen to a Boonville, Mo., boy in the big city, violating the curfew law. From his Louis XVI suite in a tony tavern Bill saw look down upon me at my daily chores. As a younger man and a fellow Missourian I have tried by precept and example to impress upon him the virtues of hard work and regular hours. Now and then I have tried to dazzle him at my bedside-the window seat with something hellish in the way of lounging robes. Once I even let him gaze upon my Lanvin yellow ensemble with the purple sash—but evidently to no avail. He has shown plainly that he would rather go his way, keep his own hours, even if he has to be shot.

The Merry-Go-Round FLOWERS

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—A lot of behind-the-scenes factors are at the root of the increasing belligerence of congress toward the President. Sum total of it all probably means that Roosevelt is going to have more and more trouble from within his own party.

In the early morning hours following the Roosevelt landslide of Nov. 3, when it became apparent that the President would have the biggest majorities in history in both houses of congress, Charley Michelson ruefully remarked:

"We're going to regret this." The day of regret now has arrived. The Democratic majorities in both the house and senate are too top-heavy, too unwieldy, too disloyal, and, last, but not least, too lacking in pie.

The patronage was dished out during the first four years, and now with more than 500 Democrats yapping on capitol hill, the cupboard is bare.

Here are four additional reasons for the congressional fireworks against the administration:

POOR LIAISON between the White House and capitol hill. Roosevelt hasn't know what has been going on in congress. His contact men have fallen down on the job. Charley West, who is supposed to do this, smirks, smiles but doesn't produce. Son James isn't supposed to talk to congressmen and probably wouldn't help much if he did.

The White House has been neglecting to sugar up the congressional rank and file, and simultaneously the rank and file has forgotten that it was elected on Roosevelt's coat-tails.

PORK NEEDED

2. The boys on capitol hill need a pork bill. They have always had it in previous administrations, but in this one, pork distribution has gone to Harry Hopkins. It had nothing to say about it.

Pork is all-important for greasing political machines. They cannot run without it. Pork is not necessarily iniquitous, though it can be. Pork consists of good roads, inland waterways, harbor deepening, flood control, post offices, custom houses.

These are what increase a congressman's political importance at home. Folks point to the new post office and say: "Congressman Jones brought us that." But during the New Deal, the folks say: "Harry Hopkins built us that."

The local congressman is out of luck. That's why congress wanted to earmark relief appropriation.

SOUTHERN REVOLT
3. Congress has caught the spirit of rebellion from the court fight. This comes largely from the South. Southern congressmen are not saying much about it, but the supreme court reform bill worries them. It is beginning to get mixed up with the negro question.

Also, defeat is contagious, and there is no doubt that Roosevelt has lost the first round in the court reform fight. The idea gets round that if the President can be defeated on one thing he can be defeated on another.

If allowed to go unchecked, this results in a runaway congress. This was one thing that ruined Hoover.

This also is one reason Roosevelt is working overtime herding his straying congressmen back into the fold. Those who have talked with him say he is getting tougher and more hard-boiled. He has refused to give ground an inch, insisting on the whole administration program or nothing.

If he is tough enough and adroit enough, he may get it—though this time it isn't going to be so easy.

A. F. OF L. RAIDERS

One grudge which Bill Green's A. F. of L. has against the C. I. O. is that the industrial unionists are encroaching on the preserves of established craft unions. Yet at this very moment three of the biggest A. F. of L. affiliates are conducting aggressive raids in territory long claimed by the railroad brotherhood.

One of the A. F. of L. foragers is the Longshoremen's union, which is trying to wrest waterfront freight handlers employed by railroads away from the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. Seaports in every part of the country are involved in this row. It is so bitter that Roosevelt recently stepped in and named a special mediation board under the railway labor act.

Most ironic sidelight is that railway clerks, a member of the A. F. of L. executive council which ousted the C. I. O. union, second ruckus is between the Brotherhood of Maintenance-of-Way Men and the Carpenters' Union, biggest craft unit in the A. F. of L. The latter organization, headed by "Bully Bill" Hutcheson, whom John L. Lewis floored at the 1935 A. F. of L. convention, is trying to grab off railroad carpenters who do structural work on rights of way. The Brotherhood union claims jurisdiction over these workers and the battling is fierce and vengeful.

The third feud also involves the maintenance-of-way brotherhood. It is trying to beat off a raid from another A. F. of L. quarter the machinists' union, headed by swarthy Arthur Wharton, who acted as "prosecutor" in the "trial" that preceded the expulsion of the C. I. O. The machinists are seeking to enroll water-pump and other mechanics employed by the railroads.

The C. I. O. is taking no part in these bitter scraps—but it is enjoying them hugely. Reason is that "Labor" weekly newspaper of the brotherhoods has been very caustic about the C. I. O., denouncing it as a destroyer of worker-unity and fomenter of dissension.

TRAVEL-CONSCIOUS WEST

(By Paula Chronicle)

It was the automobile that made us a travel-conscious people, but trains, ships and planes are cashing in this year on the golden harvest of touring. Many folks who have not had a real vacation for many years already are starting to pack for long, restful jaunts into neighboring states or neighboring countries.

There is something about our high-gear, nervous modern life that requires a period of rest and rest. Nothing is more restful to the average human than travel—new places and new activities. Incidentally, nothing is more educational.

For years there has been a strong movement on foot to make people of Southern California, conscious of the beauties of their own empire of mountains, forests and streams. But we cannot encourage isolation and expect people from other parts of the world to continue coming this way. And we cannot have the vacation each year in the same locality and get the best out of travel.

Philip, Duke of Orleans and regent of France, one day received M. Massillon, Bishop of Clermont, who bore complaints regarding a man the regent had sent him to work out affairs of the clergy. The regent interrupted the recital by saying: "We must allow he is a great rascal." The Bishop said: "Yes, one unmasked and ruined." "But," said the regent, "you must admit that while he is a scoundrel of the first order, he is very adroit. Abbe, we must make an ambassador of him!"

One Man's Opinion

By X REPORTER

We earth microbes who live on the outer skin of a clay ball we can neither control nor comprehend, are a funny lot.

We build tiny little playhouses of steel and stuff and call them skyscrapers. We play all day at digging ditches, at running railroad trains or airplanes, at making newspapers—and we call that our "work."

We eat to live and live to eat, and the clock goes 'round and after a while our particular clock stops—and where do we go from here?

No, that isn't intended as "philosophy." It's just a preface to a little story I'm about to tell, proving that the visible evidences we will leave of our tenancy of this whirling ball are far from being the best things we accomplish while here. Maybe you'll disagree.

A little lady of my acquaintance, one who had fulfilled her physical destiny at least by bringing forth and rearing a family of children, was stricken with a newly-popular malady. The name of the malady doesn't matter. Enough to say that it was real enough to this very lovely lady so that she was confined to her bed for the greater part of a year.

Now in the course of her life she had lived for several years at each of two cities in a western state, and had made friends in each.

But at the time of her misfortune she was living at the home of her daughter in a third city in that same state. The geography of this tale is important.

During the time of her siege in bed this lovely person had a birthday.

And her two circles of friends in those two distant and widely separated cities remembered her birthday—and observed it.

Both groups of friends held birthday parties for her and took the gifts were sent along. One of the groups arranged gifts for delivery in advance, so that the bed-ridden lovely lady had on her birthday and one each day for a week or more thereafter. Everybody knows by this time that I'm a most impractical gink, so it won't be much of a shock when I announce that I think that birthday parties more important than the flock of skyscrapers or miles of highway.

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

Justice of the Peace Cal Lester, of Orange, won't be any more popular in Placentia or La Habra than Chief of Police Floyd Howard of Santa Ana. The Orange judge's heart doesn't respond to brown hair and blue eyes or blonde hair or gray optics. There isn't any flutter even when the offender is beautiful. Sixty miles an hour through a 15 mile zone gets a strong disapproval from the judge, and a five day jail sentence for a pretty Anaheim telephone operator, and the judge says it isn't a wrong number, either.

The Declaration of Independence contains a sentence which all of us should remember in our reading and our writing, and that is "a decent respect to the opinions of mankind." With this thought in mind we start out with a toleration in thought and interpretation which is wholesome for the body politic. No one can prevent an inference, but the justice of that inference may be questioned. Wonder if that is why Teddy Roosevelt said to "speak softly but carry a big stick."

Really, now, there is some weather to talk about. Monday again late in the afternoon the sun shone, and responded to an encore Tuesday. There has been quite a generous call for sunshine on the part of the populace. And then the state was losing some of its reputation by continued cloudy weather. We are now in the light again, and make a difference it makes in the spirit of the people. It may only be mental psychology, to some, but it's better business to most of us.

If we are to spend the rest of our days in a cemetery, make mine Fairview. This earthly finality looked so beautiful on Memorial Day that anyone should be glad to spend the rest of his days there—mortally speaking. Of course I wouldn't want this preference of mine to get an immediate response, as I have considerable unfinished business to attend to, and a lot of people to annoy.

How would it do to get Floyd Young, the meteorological expert, to send out a special weather report ordering "firing" so we can get the frost out of the oranges?

It is said—I don't know who said it—that it takes all kinds of people to make a world, and I know it takes all kinds of paragraphs to make a column. Some of them please, others displease. Tuesday I got an offense, and the same day a compliment. That makes the score one to one. If you express an opinion that starts an argument, and if you have no opinion then a column isn't worth a whoop, and whoop isn't what I wanted to say. So with malice toward none and charity for all, let the chips fall where they may, etc., and two more etcs.

When the teacher at a spelling school contest gave the contestants the word "szyzygy," five of 'em went down in a row, which convinces me that it is much easier to submit a word than spell it. Szyzygy belongs to the astronomic family, and so far as my observation is concerned must have been in flight for an indeterminate period. At least I never heard of it. Did you?

George Boyd is home from San Francisco with all the horses he rodeoed, and first prize for El Rodeo Riding Club. George said to me before he made the trip that if Orange county would send the riding club to the Golden Gate bridge dedication, he would bring home the "bacon." At the time I thought he was using his enthusiasm to get enough money contributed so the club could make the trip, but he knew what he was talking about when I thought he was only talking.

Oil is not only dirty when it comes up out of the ground but it gets dirty when it comes up for legislation. Now the Huntington Beach oil tidelands issue becomes a Sacramento scandal and a district attorney says he will ask for a couple of indictments against legislators just to prove that it is dirty.

The Assistance League is putting on an equestrian event at the Municipal Bowl next Saturday. June 5. It's just a something different in the way of Orange county entertainment. With all of the automobile progress the horse comes in for our present day appreciation and past recognition. The Municipal Bowl show is not just for the purpose of exhibiting equine aristocracy, although pedigree means considerable. There is a deeper significance and utilitarian service involved. Money derived from this entertainment will be used to support a children's bed at St. Josephs hospital. Your support of this endeavor will provide a service for some child who may be unable to obtain professional attention without your patronage. I hope the child sympathy pulls at your heart strings and your purse at the same time. The Assistance League serves your help, and the little children your compassion.

Science Says "Weaker Sex" Is Stronger Than Man!

FEW men can equal the average woman in an endurance test—Girls may tire more quickly, yet remain fresher at the end of a race. For eight out of every ten co-eds, say scientists, possess about ten percent more reserve energy than an ordinary man!

This remarkable discovery was recently announced after a series of metabolism and breathing tests conducted under the direction of Dr. Jakob A. Stekol, Professor of Nutrition at Fordham University. Both men and women students in his classes are served the same meals—and under controlled test activities the co-eds prove their superior endurance.

Dedicate charts show the amount of energy expended by an average girl at rest and peddling a high speed bicycle. And this attractive co-ed seems to display more reserve stamina than her fellow male students. Her breath comes more easily—and lasts longer!

An average co-ed's records on the athletic field, of course, do not equal those of men. Yet this fact, say physical instructors, is not so much due to lack of potential strength and agility as to a comparative lack of early training and experience.

Life An Easy Daily Dozen For This Man!

TO WALK up-side-down might be strenuous exercise even to trained circus tumblers, but to this successful business man the feat comes naturally—Citizens of Pontiac, Michigan, where Loyle P. Sage is a well liked tailor and cleaner, once pointed him out as an example of heroic courage—when for a few weeks an accident caused him to view the world from his ankles!

When he recovered within a short time and felt as well as ever, he discovered that this strange position was easily assumed, and now entertains his acquaintances by instantly reversing a normal posture and talking to them—like a ventriloquist—from the floor.

Scientists who have examined him believe that his passing handicap made certain muscles amazingly pliable. Touching the hands to the ground and bending the head over as far as possible, they say, is an excellent exercise to tone up unused muscles and promotes deep breathing.

This tailor finds that it keeps him in condition and gives him a hearty appetite. And this posture when repeated a dozen or more times before breakfast, say physical culture experts, tends to produce slim hips and tone up muscles of the chest and shoulders.

Sea Gull Intuition!

SEA GULLS know when it is meal time—and come without being called!

When great liners and passing ships sail a few miles beyond shore on long trips, armies of gulls begin to get hungry.

Great flocks of these white-winged birds habitually swarm around steamers which dump into the sea kitchen and table scraps left from the breakfasts and dinners of well fed crews. And when the abrupt departure of these ships suddenly deprives countless gulls of their accustomed food, their shrill cries of hunger and disappointment echo along the beaches.

Bird lovers recently came to the rescue and started a neighborhood campaign whereby housewives saved kitchen scraps and crusts of bread. Young women were enlisted to distribute the banquet of charity. Donning bathing suits and wading through the surf with well filled baskets, a dozen or more pretty Southern California co-eds cast scraps into the air—and this one enjoys the task, evidently, as much as the gulls welcome their meal!

These gulls and a smaller white-headed gull are typical of the Pacific Coast, and only a small part of a species which numbers 50 varieties. Both of these western gulls are marine, breeding in inland lakes close to the sea—and are frequently seen following a farmer's plow in search of grubs and worms. They are distinguished by square tails, powerful beaks, and the habit of breaking mollusk shells by dropping them from high in the air.

Unsurpassed in protecting crops, according to ornithologists, these gulls have for several years been safeguarded by state laws. Plagues of grasshoppers, locusts and other ravaging insects have been consumed and dispersed within a few days by the mysterious arrival of a host of hungry sea gulls.

While protected by law, these soaring and restless birds which populate waterfronts and beaches are comparatively safe from impulsive marksmen—since their flesh is rank and coarse, and far from a table delicacy. Only a few villages of Eskimos in the Arctic depend upon young gulls for food, and then the wings and breasts are salted for winter use only when other supplies fail.

Of the few wild fowl still remaining on Pacific shores, roaming bands of sea gulls are the one species to show a steady annual increase.

Every species of sea gull, say ornithologists, are blessed by a highly developed instinct which brings them many miles through the air to meet incoming steamers and sailing vessels—and food!

She Climbs Flag Pole For Living

THERE'S a difference between being a flag pole "sitter" and a professional steeplejack!

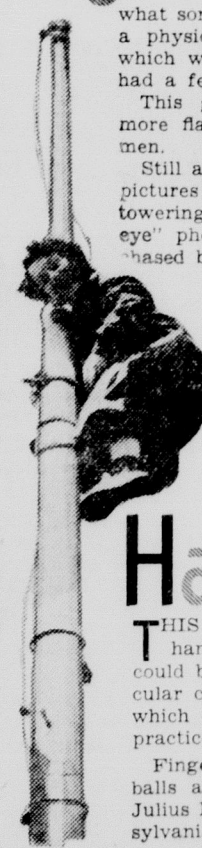

In recent years during a craze to sit for days and weeks on top of swaying steel rods, men won cash prizes and made records for amazing endurance. Their strange obsession occasionally proved profitable but served no practical purpose.

But when Miss Marion Plunkett climbs a flag pole it is more than just a stunt to create publicity. For several years this daring girl has made a good living by taking contracts to repair and paint hundreds of poles and church steeples.

And—instead of feeling nervous about working high above the earth, she takes her occupation calmly and is surprised when people think it is especially dangerous.

"It's just a job like anything else," she says, "and it pays better than office or factory work which a girl might do. While my friends warn me that some day I'll take a bad tumble, if I concentrate upon the work itself, I have no time to be afraid of accidents. And rather than being nerve wracking, my work demands the best of physical condition. A steeplejack should never ascend when he—or she—is tired. Actually, climbing is a healthy profession."

"As a child I liked to climb trees, and was never the victim of dizziness. Before my family allowed me to enter what some people think is an unusual business, a physician gave me tests for acrophobia—which wasn't necessary, because I have never had a fear of high places."

This girl steeplejack has perhaps painted more flag poles than many more experienced men.

Still another source of profit comes from the pictures she takes while clinging to the top of a towering mast. Recently a group of such "birds-eye" photographs of a small town were purchased by her local Chamber of Commerce—to advertise the well kept streets and gardens. Gradually, this feminine "jack" declares, she is collecting modernistic pictures snapped at new angles—from the air instead of the ground. This picture, however, is one snapped by a friend on the ground, and shows the attractive steeplejack how she looks to the world below when she ascends to dizzy heights.

Handball Developed These Hands!

THIS well formed and powerful hand is one of which an athlete could be proud—and by sheer muscular control it accomplishes tricks which are impossible without long practice—

Fingers which can contain 20 baseballs are the valued possession of Julius B. Shuster of Jeanette, Pennsylvania. Although he is something of an athlete and enjoys many sports, his chief recreation is handball—and for a good reason.

"When a boy I had rather weak and undeveloped hands," he says, "and the school gymnasium instructor advised me to play handball. This fast game not only helped me physically, but soon hardened and developed my hands until they were normal. I found that the more handball I played, the stronger my fingers became."

"I was never either an unusual baseball player or a billiard expert, but by a little practice I could fit billiard balls or baseballs between my fingers—and by careful balancing, finally held 15 balls."

"Adding five more was not easy, and demanded steady nerves and muscles—"

At first Mr. Shuster's acquaintances refused to believe that the feat he claimed to have mastered was so easily achieved—but after he had succeeded not once but any number of times, they admitted that he had produced a minor miracle. Now, he says, they are all trying it!

Turtle Has House On Back

By R. Remlow Harris

"OLD MAN gave um den to beaver. Gave um cave to Brother Bear. Gave um hole in ground to Gopher. Gave um nest to birds of air." So spoke poor old homeless Turtle, to Old Man, long time ago. "But," said Turtle to the Old Man, "you gave me no place to go. No got nest, no hole. No burrow. You no treat poor Turtle right. Please, Old Man, remember Turtle need um place to sleep at night."

Old Man look at sad eyed Turtle. There some truth in what him say. Old Man just forgot old Turtle when he gave out homes one day. So he think. Then get um idea. Very fine idea him got. Why not give um Turtle wigwam? Why not let him live in POT? So he put round pot on Turtle. Said Old Man— "You look um swell. Go in Peace, My Brother Turtle. Now you gottum place to dwell."

So the Turtle has a WIGWAM, snug and tight and quick to find. Where he goes, his home goes with him. He cannot leave it behind.

Strange Ways In Which To Make a Living!

Tenacity Of Purpose And Ingenuity Of Westerners Prove Old Theory That "Where There's A Will There's A Way"—To Get Ahead!

Occupational Authorities Declare There Are a Thousand and One More Ways Today to Make a Living Than There Were a Few Years Ago. People With Imagination and a Disregard for Conventional Pursuits Have Established Profitable Incomes by Individual Talents.

Melba Burghard, Although Still in Her 'Teens, Is Proving Successful as a Magician, Being the Youngest Member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians.

W. O. Reed Has Been Bitten 217 Times by Poisonous Serpents, But, So Far He Hasn't Suffered From the Ravages of Snake Bite. He Is in Demand by Museums to Handle Deadly Reptiles.

HUNDREDS of westerners have discarded conventional and ordinary ways of making a living. They have discovered enough unusual methods of earning money to fill a thick book of true experiences—

And while several of their ideas might at first glance appear fantastic and impractical, each of these extraordinary occupations has recently proved to be financially sound.

The variety of pursuits is amazing. Making toast-models of famous men—raising turtles—wrestling with alligators—trapping wild owls—catching bears alive—and being bitten every day by venomous snakes are only a few of the exceptional ways people have found to gain economic independence. These courageous and imaginative advocates of unique professions are normal and successful men and women who have chosen to be different—because it pays.

Turtles and small snakes are the well-cared-for pets of Mrs. Raymond S. Phillips of Tujunga, California, and she finds them profitable. While most women show no fondness for reptiles and turtles, this westerner is an exception. When a friend gave her a fine pair of desert turtles she adopted them without immediately planning to go into business. Soon she captured a family of harmless snakes behind the house, and added them to her miniature zoo. One morning she found an unexpected increase in the turtle and reptile families, and decided they must pay for their food and care. The turtle's consumption of fresh lettuce was increasing rapidly.

"I began to give them away as pets," she says, "and soon people offered to buy them. That was the beginning of a growing turtle business. I have as many as 30 or more at a time. When they grow larger, I sell some to restaurants and hotels, which are glad to get them."

Occasionally her relatives smile and think it an odd occupation, but Mrs. Phillips plans to grow and sell more turtles each year.

At regular periods she has a market for her snakes, which are used for scientific experimental purposes. And in the past few months she has added substantially to her income.

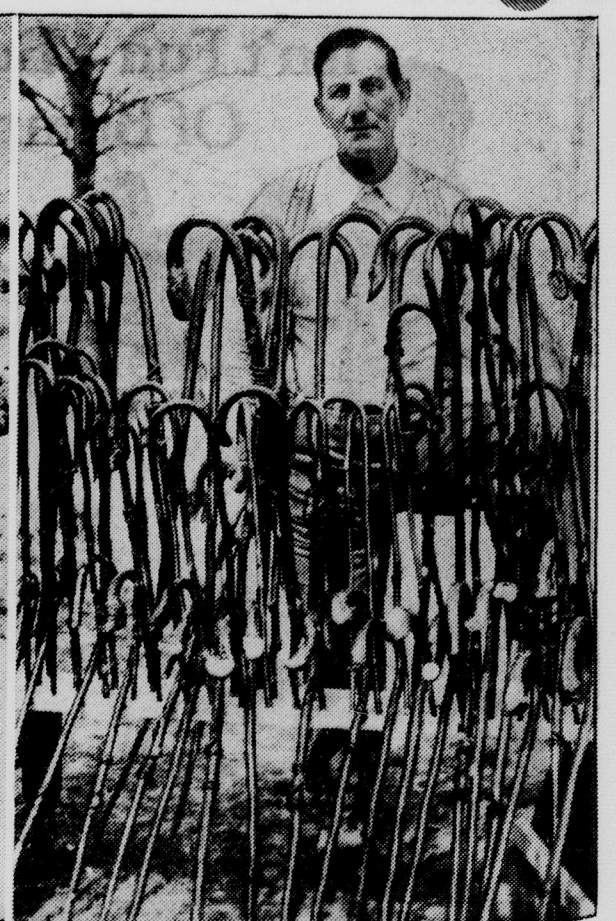

Howard Thurston and the late Harry Houdini were the most famous exponents of the magician's art, a profession practiced almost entirely by men. Convinced that a clever girl can succeed in this difficult field, Miss Melba Burghard, a mid-western girl, has been studying the "black art" for a year. She is a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, and gave a successful exhibition at their last convention. So far she has not reached the heights attained by master magicians, but several of her illusions are already widely known. Her tutor, who recently died and left her many valuable stage properties, also initiated her into the secret mysteries of his best tricks.

companion of the serpent and the toad—" But several western girls have made the common hood owl more popular as a pet than talkative parrots. In the Sierra Nevadas and the Cascade Mountains hundreds of wild owls can still be captured. These are tamed and sent to pet stores in several cities and bring good prices.

PROBABLY another person with Hollywood in mind is H. E. Rickle of Cozad, Nebraska—the type of man, his acquaintances like to say, "who will bite off his nose to spite his face." Yet there may be method in his seeming madness. Several facial contortionists command high salaries in the movies, and at this occupation Mr. Rickle—at present a gas station owner—is something of a genius. Also he makes a neat income by selling photographs of his amusing expressions.

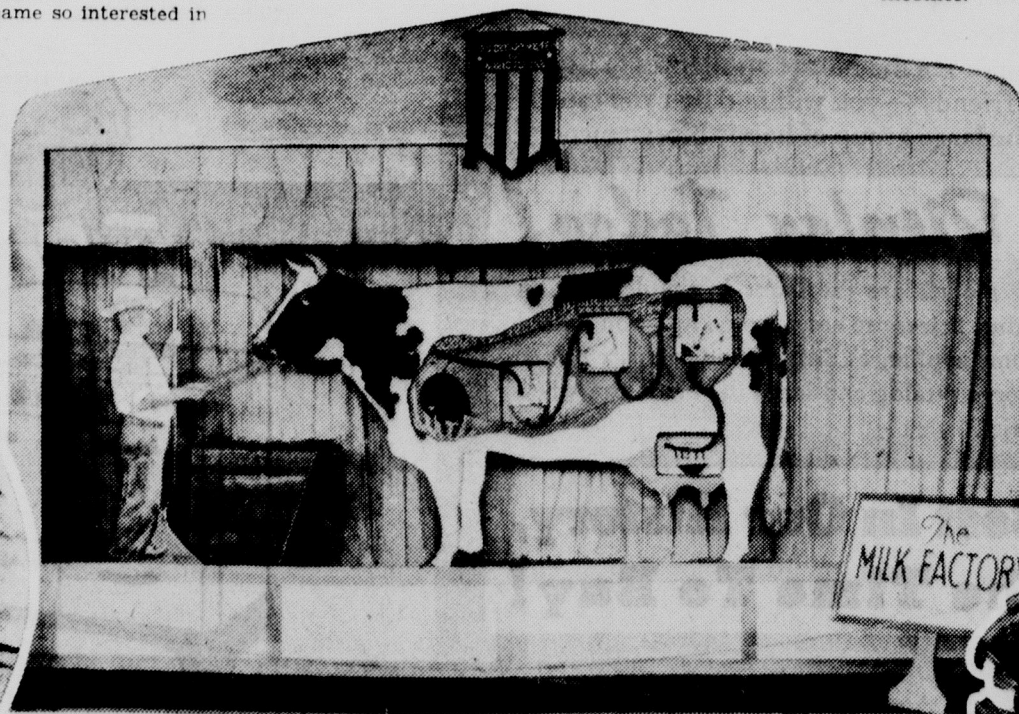

Proverbially, when Greek meets Greek all trading is deadlocked. But Mr. Strakes, once a native of Athens, determined to avoid all competition. His models of world leaders—George Bernard Shaw, Woodrow Wilson, and other famous men—are attracting wide attention, and have a steady sale in novelty shops. He constructs them entirely of well-browned toast.

Zoos that require bears write to Col. Bill Howell of Cody, Wyoming, stating their needs. He packs up, taking a horse and a type of crude "trailer" into the mountains where he traps the number of black bears wanted. The wild bear, fastened by its legs to the ingenious trailer, is dragged back to town and shipped by express. However, black bears are growing scarcer, and while zoos are paying better prices, soon there will be no bears to capture. Then the Colonel will have to find a new profession.

To many people groundhogs are believed to herald the approach of spring when they emerge from winter quarters and cannot see their shadow. "There may be somethin' to this coming of spring theory," says T. F. Hall, a Southwesterner who makes a living as a professional groundhog killer, "but to me they pay my rent and grocery bill."

Her Life Is A Dizzy, Madhouse Whirl!

Martha Raye Says Being Comedienne Isn't Fun — But Only A Series Of Bumps And Bruises!

"MOUNTAIN MUSIC" is a riot of wild antics, laughter and lightning-like gags from a box office standpoint, but the whole thing is just a series of bruises, a pain in the neck and a gallon of liniment to Martha Raye.

"It may look easy, this business of being a comedienne, but it isn't," she declares. "And it isn't just a routine of galloping through life, laughing and making other people laugh."

"But I've been clowning all my life. Someday I'll break a leg and get a rest, if I can't find another way out."

"My folks were in vaudeville and they taught me how to fall as soon as I could walk. You see, if you fall frontwards, you break your fall with your chin—slipping your hands under, of course—while if you fall backwards you break your falls with your elbows, and you're in for a bump if you don't fall relaxed."

"I remember one time I was in a New York stage show where the girls step over the footlights and sing directly down to the audience. The lights blinded me and I stepped too far. I wrecked a bass drum, a bull fiddle, and knocked out the pianist, but the audience thought it was all in fun and made me go on with the dance."

"After that I tried singing sweet little ballads and capering through spring dances, but I nearly starved to death—so I turned back to clowning."

"Since I came to Hollywood they've been sitting up nights figuring out new falls for me. They were easy until I accidentally fell down a well in 'Rhythm on the Range.' They thought it was so funny they left it in the script. In 'Hideaway Girl' I was crowned on the head, tossed down stairs and dumped into a pool of water."

"That wasn't so bad, but in 'College Holiday' they scheduled me for a sword fight with Ben Blue. Then I had to pull down a temple. After that they made me fall into a bowl of liquor in 'Waikiki Wedding' and I got caught in a net while chasing a pig. In the same picture I fell off a house and got slapped out of a tree by a chimpanzee."

"With those successes behind me, the script writers decided Martha was the new formula for laughter, so in 'Mountain Music' I get soaked with a fire hose, tumble a dozen or so times and perform all kinds of outlandish stunts. Still, they didn't play fair—they slipped in an adagio. At best I'd only done a little 'trucking' before I came to Hollywood, but that meant nothing to them. They didn't seem to realize it takes a long time to learn muscular control for anything as complicated as that wild act. All they saw was Martha flying through the air with the greatest of ease and landing anywhere—the harder, the better and the funnier!"

"Being a comedienne funny? Say, I was slammed on the floor, tossed into the air, whirled around and around, somersaulted about and dragged across the floor as a pleasant little interlude. And when I got through, Director Robert Florey stepped up and said, 'That wasn't so bad, but I think we ought to do it over. There weren't enough turns in the air!'"

"After this I think I'll go back to New York for a quiet little rest."

ANYONE CAN ENTER!

LOOK at the second cartoon above. You can almost hear what he is saying and she is answering. She's not the first woman to make the mistake of thinking that all corn flakes are alike. And now she's finding out!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—represent by far the biggest value you can buy. They're made better—of premium white corn, in the great spotless Kellogg plant. They taste better—no imitation has ever duplicated their delicious flavor. And they're packed better—the only corn flakes kept oven-fresh by Kellogg's patented heat-sealed bag, inside the package.

Decide now what you think this husband and wife are saying to each other. Using not more than twenty words for each—fill in the two balloons in the second cartoon. Or else just write your suggested answer on a plain sheet of paper. Send it in with a Kellogg's Corn Flakes package-top. Easy, isn't it? Enter the contest today! You have more than 5000 chances to win a prize!

Here are some sample answers:

Almost anyone can think up dozens of things this couple might be saying. For example, a very nice husband might say:

Well, I'm sorry—but I like that Kellogg flavor better. No other corn flakes have it.

And the wife:

I agree with you, dear. Guess I'll have to remember that slogan and say "Kellogg's" before I say "corn flakes."

Or, a cross husband might say:

Well, now you see! Why take chances! You know Kellogg's are always fresh and good. That's why they're leaders!

And the wife:

All right. I guess that's what they mean when they say Kellogg's are made better, taste better and packed better.

She Got A Job!

FIVE STAR FICTION

By Priscilla Hovey Wright

What Happens When A Wealthy Girl Decides She Wants To Know More About The Man Who Intrigues Her Fancy

"I WANT A JOB," she said, not pleadingly, but gaily, as though she fully expected to get one.

His eyes saw the luxurious softness of the brown coat with its deep cuffs of fur; the blue eyes, laughing and a bit impudent; the self-confident expression of the lovely young face.

"Do you need a job?" he asked coldly and was irritated because he could not remember where he had seen her.

"I'll say I need one," she replied pleasantly. "And," she added blithely, "I always get what I go after."

He frowned at the flippancy of her reply but at the same time a wave of satisfaction swept him. He had recognized her. She was the girl who a little more than a week ago had been at the meeting of the committee the mayor had appointed to investigate relief measures for the unemployed. And when he had spoken, seriously, because he always spoke seriously, she had looked at him with the disconcerting directness of a child—a mischievous child. He had longed to shake her.

He had an impulse to shake her now. He had no sympathy with wealthy girls who worked for the fun of it, especially in times like the present. He knew what it was to need a job, had known ever since he had been fourteen years old. Strange, at times, to think that at twenty-nine he was the city editor of the paper he had once sold on street corners. Peter Kent, city editor!

"Suppose you give me your name," he said courteously but unencouragingly as he reached for a piece of paper. "As a fellow member of the Unemployment Committee I ought to know it," he continued affably. "Either the person who introduced us mumbled or I was deaf."

"You were deaf," she stated flatly. "He spoke very distinctly. I'm Claire Dufresne."

Claire Dufresne! The daughter of Philip Dufresne who not only owned the dingy building the Ledger was housed in but had been one of its backers when O'Connell had started it in 1900. Clearly that must be employed here. Dufresne, he knew was in California. Mrs. Dufresne had been dead for several years and the girl had spent most of her time abroad, had only recently, in fact, come home.

"Why don't you see Mr. O'Connell?" he said. That was the idea. Pass the buck to O'Connell. "He's the managing editor, you know; the one who ultimately hires and fires..."

FIFTEEN minutes later O'Connell, sixty and stout, with a bit of a swagger in his walk, came in.

"We'll have a new member on the staff tomorrow, Peter," he said affably. "To tell you the truth, I didn't want to take her on but—well, it's Claire Dufresne." He paused to see what effect this announcement would have. "I'll give her two weeks at the most. She isn't fitted to do anything, naturally, so don't give her much—You get the idea."

Peter got the idea and grumbled and growled about it. Maybe O'Connell felt under obligation to Dufresne, but he didn't. Peter smiled grimly. It was just barely possible that Claire Dufresne would feel like leaving before the end of two weeks.

To his amazement and chagrin the girl did what she was assigned to cover accurately and tersely. Her weak point was her typewriting, and her copy was atrocious. To make matters worse, to her lot had fallen what was known as the Ark of the Covenant, an especially decrepit machine with a double keyboard. She spoke about it the first day.

"I know I'm awfully slow," she apologized in a tone of voice that held no spark of regret, "but what a terrible relic that machine is!"

She was standing before him in a little gray jersey dress. Her hair, clipped just below her ears, was combed in sleek waves behind them. Those perfect waves irritated him; he felt himself tighten.

"The others have all used that machine and got by with it."

The smile faded from her lips. "I see," she said shortly and went back to her chair.

The second day she laboriously hammered out the two unimportant bits of work he had given her. On the third day she came to him and told him soberly that her machine would not go at all.

"Won't go at all?" he repeated stupidly.

"Won't go at all," she repeated meekly.

"Call up Jo about it," he told her gruffly. "He's the repair man. One of the boys will give you his number."

Jo came and, with a twinkle in his eye reported that nothing further could be done, surgically or otherwise, to the Ark of the Covenant.

"And that's what it is to be born rich," sighed Fellows, the dapper little city hall reporter. "The good old doctrine of them that has, gets. The rest of us banged on that cursed thing for months. Would it break? No!"

Yet none of them begrudged her the new machine. They liked her and accepted her as one of them. At first, of course, they had joked about her.

"Nice of the old man to provide inspiration for us," McKenzie, the police reporter, had jibed. "She'll send the old circulation up all right, all right."

"Whose circulation?" Ford, one of the district men, had dryly countered.

Only he, Peter Kent, who had always been too busy to bother with women was upset by her presence and he raged at himself because he was. When she came to his desk he tingled with the nearness of her. It was a new sensation and intoxicating, but there was too much pain in it. And because of the pain he held himself taut—was so curt, he was almost disagreeable.

At night in the office—he almost always went back after supper—he wondered about her. He had no home himself but the Ledger. He had a room, of course, but he merely slept in it. At the office in the evening he read; sometimes he wrote, not things for the paper, but things he hoped to publish some day.

But she, he told himself, would be surrounded by friends. He pictured her at night, gay, vivid, beautiful in a group as carefree as herself. These dreams hurt.

THERE followed one of those brief periods when something good breaks almost every day. And then there was the return of the Native Son.

Hedley Rondell, nee Henry Randall had been born in Farmington of the customary poor but worthy parents. The family had moved to California when Henry was in his teens and Farmington soon heard of Henry in Hollywood where he was a find in juvenile leads. For ten years his star rose and his name changed. Farmington followed his progress with interest, especially in the matrimonial field. Three wives Henry acquired and disposed of in the ten years.

When the silent films went, Hedley Rondell went with them. In Farmington some were unkind enough to say it was because he had a voice like a hog caller. It was then that he went abroad, where he worked in French films—and married wife number four. Now he was back in Farmington.

Peter Kent was smiling as he brought the news to the staff.

"The old-time sheik, Hedley Rondell, is back," he said genially. "He must have slipped into the country quietly. Somebody's got to see him—find out why he's here, what he's going to do, what his views are on European women, etc. I know you'd all love to go but I think I'll give Heeney a try."

Heeney, a stout, curly-haired young Irishman, reported defeat an hour later.

"Sure he's there," he exclaimed ruefully. "In the most gosh-awful pajamas you ever laid eyes on. And right with him there's two of the hungriest, most villainous looking mutts you ever saw. They growled and snarled at me and he didn't say a thing to quiet 'em, either. Told me he was here, intended to stay here, hadn't anything to say and for me to scram!"

"Well, write a little story on it," said Peter. "And be sure to describe his pajamas."

Heeney wrote his little story and a young man from the rival paper also wrote a little story. He, too, had been accorded a cold welcome. The local yarns were copied by the big city papers who promptly sent on men of their own. And to them all Mr. Rondell displayed gorgeous pajamas, a testy temper, and ferocious bodyguards.

The little game became vastly entertaining to the Ledger staff.

"Now, in my opinion, we're all working on the wrong track," said McKenzie. "Instead of bothering about that senile sheik we should concentrate on the dogs."

A chorus of growls and woof-woofs met this suggestion.

"Absolutely," went on McKenzie. "Make friends with 'em. Now I propose we chip together and disguise O'Brien, here." — O'Brien was the obese member of the staff, a bald, cheerful man of fifty—"as a Siberian cheese hound and send him up to get acquainted."

Another chorus of canine howls greeted his remarks.

"Merely a thoughtful suggestion," went on McKenzie calmly as O'Brien reached for a pot of glue. "But in any case, I hereby announce that to the person who secures an interview from our famous townsman I will award the historic fur-lined cuff links!"

During the enthusiastic "hear, hears" that followed, Peter Kent came to the door.

"Shut up, you guys," he growled good-humoredly.

Then he caught sight of Claire Dufresne. She was sitting on the edge of a table, swinging her slender legs—her eyes dancing; her lips parted in laughter.

"And get to work," he added with sudden sharpness.

They looked at one another after his departure.

"He said 'work,'" observed little Fellows genially. "Work, at half-past three in the afternoon. You may do as you wish, gentlemen, but I'm going to the bowling alleys."

IT WAS a bean supper of the Helping Hand Circle that Claire Dufresne was assigned to cover the following day and which she forgot all about. The staff felt sorry for her—Kent was so coldly disagreeable about it.

Peter was on edge. He knew it only too well. He went to the office that night as usual after taking a walk—and sat staring at a perfectly clean piece of paper, smoking one cigarette after another. The girl would have to go despite her competence. He could not stand having her around.

He had just reached this conclusion when he heard someone coming heavily up the stairs. The hall outside the office was dark so that he could not see the newcomer until the latter stood in the doorway. It was Hedley Rondell and in his arms was a slim limp figure.

Peter gripped the side of his desk.

"What have you done to her?" he asked harshly, confronting Rondell.

"Not a thing," exploded the actor wrathfully. "After hounding me all week you send somebody like this." He looked down at the girl, "this chit..."

"Give her to me," said Peter, his white lips barely moving.

Rondell transferred his burden willingly. As Peter took her in his arms he felt a warmth pour over him. He looked down at her face. It was white and her eyes were closed.

"She held me up just as I was coming down to the city," went on Rondell angrily. "Parked her car right across the road so I had to stop and then stuck this thing in my face." From his pocket he drew a revolver. "I'm from the Ledger," she says. "What is your opinion of European women?"—And she kept on insisting that I give her an interview. Said she'd missed a bean supper the night before while she'd been trailing me and had to make up for it. I persuaded her to put that confounded gun up and we drove to a place she'd picked. She got out first and I tried to drive off. She jumped on the running board; that is, she almost did and sprained her ankle. So I rushed her down here. Wouldn't tell me where she lived. I tell you—I want peace!"

"Beat it," snapped Peter. "Miss—" he hesitated. He would not share her name, "Miss Smith is the best person on our staff. What she did, she did on her own initiative but we stand back of her. We don't really care for your opinions."

"I'm willing to admit that the young lady may have had good intentions," said Rondell, looking critically at the slimmest of her. "But these modern young girls lack balance. That's the trouble, they lack balance. You—you

Will Irwin Calls Manhattan The Most Colorful Yet Shabbiest City On Earth

By Ralph Parr

THE great island of Manhattan makes up the most fantastic, the most colorful, the most shabby few square miles on earth. Here is assembled all that is glamorous and beautiful, and at the same time, all that is tawdry and ugly. Its tumultuous history makes reading as fascinating as any novel. It is a gigantic melting pot for every creed, color, and class. The quick exciting tempo of this island city stirs the blood, and its massive skyscrapers, thrusting themselves hundreds of feet into the sky, are fitting monuments to American progress and efficiency. New York may not be typical of all America, as London typifies England or Paris typifies France, yet it is symbolic of the gaudy splendor and amazing unreality that America loves.

The spirit and vitality of New York City has been caught and recorded by Mr. Will Irwin in his "Highlights of Manhattan," published by D. Appleton Century Co. This is a complete revised edition of Mr. Irwin's earlier book, and its color and verve have been magnificently enhanced by the beautiful illustrations of E. H. Suydam. Mr. Irwin is a native of Oneida, New York, and is a graduate of Stanford University. '99. His career first began as a newspaper reporter on the West Coast, and he subsequently became one of the country's leading newspaper correspondents. He was decorated by the French and Belgian governments for his services during the war, and he has brilliantly set down the experiences and impressions gained during this period in his book, "A Reporter at Armageddon." Being a resident of New York City for many years, he is more than qualified to record the life of this great metropolis.

The Grand Tour of New York is begun, appropriately, at Battery Park, where the first white men of Manhattan built their huts.

From this point we are taken along the glittering avenues, the shabby side streets, and the futile alleys of the city. We receive sharp and penetrating pictures of every high spot and low spot of the town. We are denied none of the little-known corners of interest which usually escape the eye of the casual tourist. The whole scene is made more colorful by Mr. Irwin's faithful accounts of the history of and interesting anecdotes concerning each particular phase of the town.

Probably the most famous feature of Manhattan is its great mass of skyscrapers. Mr. Irwin remarks about them: "Seen from one point of view, they are a meaningless jumble, justifying every charge the foreigners used to bring against them; seen from another, they fall into a composition, as though Michelangelo or some other super-artist had designed the whole group for a single creation." Most Americans feel a personal pride when viewing these massive structures, and the "first time" visitor is always awed by them.

We quickly come to inspect and admire Trinity Churchyard lying "at the bottom of a dizzy gorge." Then Wall Street, a veritable Grand Canyon, where the sun shines but an hour or two a day, and next, the beautiful Old City Hall is seen. At last we come to that much-discussed little district of New York known as Greenwich Village. Mr. Irwin gives us the real "low down" on the Village, and we are grateful—though disappointed. He says of it: "The idea stands fixed in popular American psychology. Greenwich Village is the Symbol of Sin. Not sordid, squalid sin, but Snappy Sin, and for that reason all the more perniciously attractive." But the myth of Greenwich Village is unceremoniously exploded, and this one-time realtor's Eden is revealed as the "Galatea of New York."

Our resume must be brief and to the point, so we cannot loiter along the way. Only to mention and not to relate the fascinating facts pertaining to the most prominent spots of interest is tantalizing. "Highlights of Manhattan" gaily and charmingly conducts us through Chinatown, Little Italy, and Little Syria. The Black Belt of Harlem is visited and we catch a glimpse of the life and activity of these Americans who seem so unrelated to their brothers in the South. The Great White Way, by day and night, offers a thrilling panorama. Fifth Avenue and Park Avenue, on whose borders live the staid rich and the new rich are inspected. We come to see great churches, museums, parks, and a seemingly endless array of other notable landmarks.

To read this book is to see New York as it is, both dressed in its finery and undressed in its squalor. Those Americans who have never made the pilgrimage to this native Mecca need not be deprived of the pleasure—let them read Mr. Irwin's book and let them see Mr. Suydam's drawings, for there is New York City, open for inspection.

THE GIRL IN BLACK VELVET

THE arrival of a new mystery novel is an everyday occurrence; but when one comes along with a distinctly different "twist," it's time to investigate. Such a book is Louis De Jean's "The Girl in Black Velvet." This is the story of Helen Cramer whose murder was listed by the police as unsolved. Mr. De Jean once knew this girl, and in telling the story of her life and death he has turned out one of the most striking and exciting mystery thrillers that has come this way in a long time.

won't publish anything about tonight, will you?"

"No," fairly growled Peter. "Now beat it."

HE LOOKED down at her face. While he had been talking he had seen her cheeks flush and her eyelashes quiver. He began to have his suspicions about the genuineness of her faint.

Gently he sat her down in a chair.

"Good," she said a bit weakly as she opened her eyes. "That was a while of a long swoon. I really couldn't have managed the stairs and I thought it would be fun to tell my grandchildren about being topped up by a pocket edition of Henry the Eighth."

He felt the old tightness returning.

"Why did you do it?" he asked stiffly.

"I wanted to win the fur-lined cuff links," she answered flippantly. But the shadow that crossed her eyes gave her away.

"It's quite swollen," he said stupidly, looking at her ankle. "I'll take you to a doctor or home, just as you prefer."

"Home," she said dully. Then she straightened her shoulders and rose unsteadily to one foot.

"All set," she said. "I can hop if you'll help me. And in the morning I wish you'd break the news of my resignation. For reasons—a sprained ankle and the inability of the idle rich to stick to anything very long."

"You're not coming back?" he asked slowly.

"No, I couldn't come back."

She gave a little shudder.

"But you must," he exclaimed. "Your work is good," he added lamely.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"How about the bean supper?"

"That didn't count."

"It seemed to count a great deal. And tonight's hold-up. I suppose that was good work?"

"It would have been better if you'd pulled the trigger on him."

"And of course you know I broke that devilish double key-board affair with a monkey wrench."

"That was brilliant. Didn't you hear what I told Rondell about you?"

"I heard you mention a Miss Smith."

There was silence as they stood looking at each other, a silence pregnant with a pulsing beat.

The girl spoke first, sinking back into her chair and removing her hat with a weary gesture. With a start he saw her hair, like a golden mist. It was rumpled, the waves were softened, broken.

"I'm sorry. I never should have come here," she said in a low, hurried voice. "It was that committee meeting. I had been so bored until you came and then it was as if—" she hesitated, then went on doggedly—"as if lights went on and violins played, I felt so warm and happy inside. It is that way, you know, when you meet certain people. I thought it would be wonderful to know you. I thought you'd like me. I never had any trouble making people like me before," she added wistfully.

"So I waited a little while, then I came down—And that's the end of the true confession hour," she finished gallantly. "As Mr. Rondell said 'these modern young girls lack balance.'"

Carelessly she put her hat back on again and rose unsteadily.

"Take that thing off," he commanded, and suddenly she was in his arms, and his face was buried in her hair.

"You can't go, you can't go," he said brokenly. "It's been bad having you here and it would be unbearable if you went away. I know I've been detestable—but, oh Claire, I've been so hungry for you! To see you here every day and know I couldn't have you."

The girl stayed in his arms. Her face was pale and her eyelashes were wet. Then she said gently, "I won't go very far away, Peter."

He released her now but stood looking at her, shaken and abashed.

"I don't suppose we really could get married, could we?" he asked humbly.

"I don't see why not," she countered. "Possibly we might wait until Dad gets back from California. He'll like you, I know. He always likes what I like."

A moment later Peter was carrying her down the stairs. Two weeks ago she had stood before him. "I always get what I go after," she had announced. He laughed down into her blue eyes and kissed her.

Bright Decorations Underfoot Give New Kitchens Utility And Charm

By Dorothy Blair

COME INTO MY KITCHEN cries the proud possessor of a modern, beautifully decorated and scientifically arranged kitchen such as the one shown here in the picture. No longer need the kitchen hide, behind its closed doors, its shabby secrets known only to the family, who conspire to keep friends and neighbors from invading it, since there's so little to arouse pride.

Things have changed a lot since the kitchen was just a shabby, crowded workroom where mother spent hours of every day in the pursuit of culinary and cleaning duties. Light and air, space and beauty have entered the kitchen, and scientific principles have been applied to the distribution of cabinets, equipments and working space so that it is both a joy to behold and a pleasant workshop.

It used to be, not so long ago, that bathrooms and kitchens were either dark and crowded, or they had a hospital-like air, with unrelieved walls and surfaces of white, with no decoration to relieve the austerity of the kitchen furnishings.

Now, though we keep our backgrounds as light as possible, the modern kitchen is a masterpiece of subtle color combinations and interesting design, which is as pleasant to the eye as a field of flowers.

The basis of room decoration always begins with the selection of the floor covering, since it serves as a background for the rest of the room and ties the various colors together. Many factors should be considered in the selection of the most highly suitable floor covering, and this important step should be taken only after careful consideration and thought.

What should we demand in floor covering for the modern kitchen? Comfort, long wear, easily cleaned surfaces, practicability and harmonious color and design. And most of us, being budget-conscious mortals, insist in a firm voice on economy.

Fortunately, there's a happy solution which answers every demand made by the most meticulous and particular housewife. This is the modern type of inlaid linoleum which is as practical and long-wearing as it is beautiful.

You see a beautiful illustration of this in the floor covering of the kitchen shown in the picture here. The bold design and cheerful colors of the inlaid linoleum set the keynote for the entire kitchen and mark it as a room not only suitable for the easy performance of the most arduous tasks, but a place of real beauty and charm. The kitchen motif, shown in the center of the floor, is a clever, modern one which would delight any home-loving woman and its simplicity is in tune with the trend of today's decoration.

Does it look to you like such a floor covering would be a very expensive proposition? This is not really true at all, for inlaid linoleum, considering the service it gives, is remarkably economical. It is not only easy on a slender pocketbook, but it offers a saving of time, effort and worry on the part of the woman whose kitchen it adorns, and this is a point which should always be considered.

Because of the careful, precise method in which linoleum is laid on the floor, it promises a maximum of service for the lifetime of a kitchen. On the wooden floor a layer of felt is first placed, for the purpose of warmth, quiet and foot comfort. After this has been firmly fixed in place, the linoleum is permanently cemented on it—then there will be no buckling, expansion or contraction. The final step is to tailor the floor covering to fit the room in every detail. The edges and seams are given careful attention, so that the finished effect gives the impression of a one-piece floor covering. In this way there are no crevices to collect dirt and make cleaning problems troublesome. Your dressmaker could give no more thought and care to the fit of your new frock than do the trained layers and fitters of linoleum now available to take care of this task.

The next practical consideration is the cleaning method used in keeping your new linoleum floor in shining, spic and span condition. Scrubbing, that ever-present kitchen task, is almost entirely eliminated, for after a simple preliminary treatment, your floor can be kept always immaculate with ease and practically no expenditure of effort. After the floor has been laid a thorough waxing is recommended by household authorities. Liquid wax is best, and this is easily and quickly applied. Polishing is not necessary, unless you like a shiny, gleaming surface. This wax covering serves to protect the linoleum from wear, it keeps dirt right on the surface, where it is easy to remove, and it gives a rich sheen to the beautiful colors and enhances them. A daily going-over with a floor mop is all that is required after the wax has been applied, and spots can be removed with a wet cloth. Of course, for the protection of your floor, you should see that there are no sharp corners on the legs of your furniture, for these will cut into the linoleum and decrease its wearability. Also, it is wise to put rounded cups under the legs of the heavier pieces.

Whether you like best a modern central design, such as the decoration shown, or an interesting all-over pattern, a soft-colored marbled effect, or a floor covering of one color with accent in the contrasting border, it is possible to choose the one nearest your heart's desire in the many and varied effects shown in embossed and inlaid linoleum. Whatever your color scheme is, there's a design to complement and enhance it.

Of course, linoleum is not confined to the kitchen floor. Interior decorators have established its importance as a floor covering throughout the entire house, and it now appears every place, from the reception hall to the living room and dining room, and even upstairs in the bedrooms, and, of course, in the bathroom, where its use has long been recognized. Not only is its dirt-resistant surface an economizer of time and trouble, but the many subtle and interesting color combinations offered make it an artistic floor choice for every kind of room. No better floor covering could be chosen for a child's room than this, for the quieting quality of the surface deadens noise and provides warmth to small feet. And who cares if paints are spilled, or milk tipped over, when it is just a minute's work to wipe up the damage?

Ingenious home planning experts, recognizing the many practical possibilities of linoleum, have even taken to using it as wall covering. This is particularly effective in the kitchen and bathroom, where steam and splashing water tend to mar less resistant surfaces. And since it can be kept in immaculate condition by an occasional wiping with a damp cloth, it will meet with the housewife's approval.

Certain types of linoleum have been created expressly for this purpose. There is one design, which is a faithful reproduction of knotty pine, that could be used in nearly every room in the house. Suitable particularly for the kitchen are marbled effects which provide a soft and pleasing background. Also, it is possible to find linoleum for the walls which cleverly imitate tile.

A Warm Suit Essential In Vacation Wardrobe

SO you're going to spend your vacation in one of the large and beautiful west coast cities! Lucky girl, you'll have a busy, happy time, I'm sure, for there's so much to see and so many thrilling things to do that you'll cram each moment full and take home the happiest kind of memories of your visit.

To make your vacation trip a success in every way you must give careful thought to your wardrobe before you start, for if you don't have the comforting assurance of being well dressed, the most thrilling experiences will be wasted on you. And in a large city, where you'll encounter so many beautifully and fastidiously gowned women, you'll want to look your very best at all times.

Don't lose heart, however, if your clothing budget is small and insignificant, for it is taste that counts, not opulence, and a small expenditure can result in a wardrobe of real chic, if there is intelligence and good taste behind it.

Remember, when planning your vacation clothes, that even in the summer time there will be opportunity in the city to wear tailored suits, top coats and street clothes of darker hue than we are accustomed to. In any city on the coast there will be little winds springing up now and then and it is wise to be prepared for them by including in your wardrobe a suit and a warm coat or two.

Cottons, of course, are summer's special favorites, and a wise choice for a holiday in town is a linen suit made of uncrushable linen, to be worn when the sun is warm and beaming. Linen suits are always smart in white, and this year they will also appear in many luscious shades which, when worn with subtly contrasting blouse and accessories, make a splendid daytime costume. The little ribbon, crepe and straw crownless hats that are gaining such favor everywhere, would look well with such a suit.

Before you plan to include many cotton frocks in your vacation wardrobe, make sure that once you arrive in the city you will have ample facilities to keep them spotless and free from wrinkles, for much of the charm of this type of garment lies in its immaculate appearance. There is a new electric iron, designed especially for travelers, which is much smaller than the kind we are accustomed to, and which has a collapsible handle to further reduce its packing space. It wouldn't be a bad idea to include one, especially if you'll be stopping at a hotel.

The young lady in the picture to the right is most suitably attired for a metropolitan holiday, for she can wear this costume throughout the day, from breakfast until sundown, with every assurance of being well and fashionably dressed.

The combination of black and white is always a happy one, and when, as in this costume, the frock is sheer black woolen and the jacket of heavy, uncrushable linen, it presents an outfit that is sure to be a success whatever the day may bring. The simple trim of polka dot silk on the dress, which is repeated in the boutonniere worn on the jacket, add a perfect finishing touch of feminine charm. This type of outfit is adapted to many occasions, for the jacket can be worn with various sports dresses, or combined with separate skirts and sweaters or blouses, while the light weight woolen frock is fine to wear under a jigger or topcoat when cool days or evenings demand fairly warm clothing.

All the details of this costume, from the tiny, close-fitting hat to the sandals, now so good for daytime as well as evening wear, are smart and flattering. The wide lapels of the jacket are new, as are its cleverly fitted lines, and the short, slightly flaring skirt is one of fashion's favorites.

Silk prints, both gay and dark, have won approval for summer wear, and if you're a lady who likes to go forth clad in silks, you'll find you're right in style when attired in this fashion in the city. Don't venture forth without a topcoat over your arm, however, for little winds do spring up, and, no matter how warm the sun, you'll be grateful for the warmth of a coat.

Special mention must also be given our tried and true friend, the tailored suit, for never has it been more the fashion than it is now.

Such a large and fascinating subject as clothes for a metropolitan holiday can be touched upon lightly in such limited space—if you're planning a sojourn of this nature soon and you'd like more detailed advice, please write and I'll be pleased to advise you. Address your request to the Five Star Weekly, San Francisco, and enclose a three cent stamp.

Time to Fill the Preserve Closet!

HEIGH-HO! Canning time is here again. The early fruits and vegetables are crying aloud to be sealed into gleaming glass jars and their goodness and sweetness stored away until winter comes and there's nothing fresh to be had.

Procrastination is an evil to be avoided like the plague where canning is concerned. Even though you'd much rather do your strawberry preserving tomorrow or next week, and you're sure the berries will hold out—don't wait! Clear the kitchen for action, don your biggest apron, and get to work while the fruit and vegetables are fresh and plentiful.

There are three methods of preserving fruits, vegetables and meats. These are the pressure cooker method, the oven method and the hot water bath method. Both the latter processes can be accomplished without extra equipment, and these two are recommended for canning fruits and tomatoes. Meats and vegetables containing little or no acid, however, can be canned with the greatest assurance of safety by the pressure cooker method. If a pressure cooker is not available, other methods can be used with success, except in the case of string beans. The Department of Agriculture of the United States Government yearly sends out warning against the home canning of string beans by any other method excepting the pressure cooker one.

Much of the preserving is still ahead of us, but berries are on ent. Jams, jellies and preserves will claim a large portion of this luscious fruit, but when obtainable in large quantities, it is wise to can some and store them away for winter desserts.

For strawberries, the first step is to thoroughly cleanse and pick over the berries, retaining only good ones. The hulls are removed, of course. Then prepare a thin syrup, using one part sugar to two parts of water, and stirring over quick heat until the sugar has dissolved. Then add the berries and cook them gently for fifteen minutes. Pack into sterilized jars, leaving about one inch of space between the top of the syrup and the mouth of the jar. Screw sterilized lids down, but not too tightly, allowing a little leeway for steam to escape. Let stand for three hours. Then process in a hot water bath for 16 minutes.

A wash boiler is a good receptacle for the hot water bath. A rack of some kind must be placed in the bottom, to keep the jars from the surface of the boiler, and to allow water under them. A cake rack will do for this. Partially fill the boiler with warm water.

Place the jars in this, leaving a two-inch space between them to permit the water to circulate between them. Cover the jars well with warm water. Place a cloth over the top of the boiler before adjusting the lid to keep in steam. Bring the water to the boiling point and count the time necessary for processing from that point. Be sure that water covers jars and is boiling all the time.

The final step is to remove the jars and screw the lids down as tightly as possible.

You'll Get Winter Dividends of Appreciation for the Summer Hours You Invest in Canning Berries

Make It A Pestless Summer

WITH the summer comes flowers, starlit nights and—insects! When the rosy dawn appears, the dew will be on the rose, and so will the aphids. And while we're spending the balmy evenings out of doors to fully appreciate nature in her most expansive mood, we're pretty liable to be distracted from our enjoyment by that ever-present pest, the mosquito.

Since the beginning of time, man has waged an unceasing war against these small but mighty enemies of peace and comfort. Their menace abates as the weather grows cool, and by winter time they are but an unpleasant memory, but just as soon as spring and summer come, there are ants and mosquitoes and aphids and dozens of other creeping, crawling and flying nuisances to deal with.

Not only are insects prime disturbers of bodily comfort, but some of them constitute an actual health menace, since they carry germs right into the most spic and span homes.

The thing to do is to conduct an intensive campaign against them early in the season before they get a foothold. The flowers in your garden will never be blighted by aphids if you check the first onrush and keep up a preventive program all through the summer. Moths and mosquitoes can be discouraged if they are battled from the first. And the gnats and flies that descend in black crowds, if unchecked, will take their troubling presence elsewhere if you are consistent in your insect eradication.

It really isn't difficult to rid your home of these pests, for science has given its best efforts to the problem of their eradication and the result has been preparations that spell sure death to any unwanted invaders.

There is one type of insect eradicator that is highly effective in bringing about high mortality among every kind of bug that annoys and harms humans, animals and plants. This is in powder form and comes in a handy sifter can so that it is easily used. It is safe to use anywhere, for it is odorless and is absolutely harmless for human beings and animals, though it spells, quick, sure death to insects.

Nothing is more pitiful than the sight of a beloved pet tortured by fleas, and the considerate owner of a cat or dog takes immediate steps to remedy such a situation. It is easy to do with a powder such as the one mentioned, for it can be sprinkled throughout the coat of the animal and with no more expenditure of effort than that the discomfort of fleas that is banished.

A can of insect powder should be included in the list of necessities for a vacation trip, for these unfriendly little nuisances are liable to turn up anywhere and one should be prepared to cope with them, or otherwise a long-anticipated vacation may be ruined. Auto camps and other stopping places sometimes abound in uninvited inhabitants of this nature, and in the interests of comfort and of health one should be prepared to take immediate steps toward their eradication.

When Wind Blows Men Sail Out To Sea!

—It's Summertime On Western Waters

By Richard W. Emery

SOME take their yachting as a life and death matter like golf and lion-hunting. Others just pass it off with a chuckle, hardly working up temper enough to kick a hole through the deck if the wind won't blow.

The true yachtsman is a democratic soul. He likes everybody who wears rubber-soled shoes out of respect for freshly varnished decks. It is commonly known that the true yachtsman loves to smell the glorious spray-filled breeze, but he also likes the smell of oakum, kerosene, hot canned pork and beans, and fresh yacht-green paint.

He likes to prow through a shipyard where grimy workmen are rasping weed and shellfish from the bottoms of sailing craft. He strolls around the yard, stepping over rusty tracks and cables, puffing cigarettes and envisioning expanses of China-blue water.

Most of all he likes to hear the cry of "All hands rise and shine!" and the rattle of sheets and halyards when a good cruise lies ahead. Even his thrill at taking his boat for a finish line can't equal his delight at starting a cruise. The cruise may bring any one of a dozen surprises, such as having the boom sweep him overboard, or hearing the spinnaker pole crack, or running into a whale, or drowning in a shipwreck.

Yachting brings everything to the true yachtsman, who sooner or later will find himself aboard his yacht at the starting line of the biennial yacht race from California to the Territory of Hawaii, westerly American yachting capital.

He can't help finding himself entered, eventually, in that particular race, because it is the realization of the true yachtsman's dream of a perfect cruise.

Where else in the world (they always ask this one) can you find such a perfect, unbroken, unobstructed 2200 nautical miles where, in young Summer's best weather, the tradewind sends a sailing craft bowing along, day and night?

And where else does the triumphant yacht racer land in the middle of an Hawaiian welcome that lasts a whole week?

True yachtsmen far and wide are strolling in shipyards to sniff of drying paint, and are wondering between sniffs whether the next mainland-to-Honolulu race will be held this year, next year or in 1939.

A story has been going around that the even years aren't enough, any more, for America's big western yacht match. The even years are graced, already, by the New York to Bermuda race, a mere 700 mile passage somewhat beyond hailing distance of shore.

The year that holds the Bermuda race may become a blank year for the Hawaii classic, and odd years may receive the honor of the world's longest sailing competition. If the change is made, will the race be held this year, or will it jump to 1939—skipping a year?

Yachtsmen wonder while they squint at boat-builders and mounds of defunct barnacles.

They wonder, for one reason especially, because the announcement of a 1937 Pacific race would provide a superb excuse for devoting a few more hours a day to a sport which has entranced men since mankind's tender years on earth.

The point is that a yacht race isn't a competition based entirely on the speed of a craft over water. Every seasoned yachtsman knows that the outcome of a long, hard race over open sea may be determined as much by shore preparation as by good navigating and skillful sailing.

A BROWN-SKINNED prominent citizen of the western city where yachts finish their trans-Pacific race was widely quoted last year when he spoke of yachting technique. He was widely quoted because he has spent much of his life either in or on water, and because he comes of the seagoingest people the world ever saw.

"Half the battle," said Duke Kahanamoku, swimmer, yachtsman and Sheriff of the City and County of Honolulu, "is to prepare for the race."

The preparation is no half-hearted dusting of deck. Hardboiled yachtsmen go into the problem like a Dutch housewife cleaning house for a visit by her husband's relatives. The yachtsmen practically take their boats apart. They put every bolt and joint under a cold suspicious eye. They scrape and paint. They scour. Lines and gear come in for inspection. They reinforce sails at points of chafing. Equipment too light for offshore weather is replaced with heavier parts.

When the yachtsmen are through with their labors, their respective yachts are as well groomed as college sorority girls ready for a senior prom.

Even so, little things that have escaped their attention may cause grief at the worst moment of a race.

Shore preparation for offshore racing is aimed at the bugaboo of delay. All in all, it's better to just keep plugging along toward the finish line than to go churning over the waves spasmodically.

Just one of a yacht's many parts—her spinnaker pole, for instance, — can give her skipper grief enough to chill his heart and make him almost give up the sport forever.

Yachtsmen Scratch Masts And Whistle

A light spinnaker pole is a fine thing, as long as no boisterous wind comes romping over the sea.

One good puff can crack the pole. A horrible example of spinnaker-pole cracking was reported by the skipper of the 45-foot Monsoon in the 1934 trans-Pacific race. Not just once, but SEVEN times, the Monsoon's spinnaker-pole broke on the outbound cruise. That should have been trouble enough, but the main boom broke too.

In the same race the 43-foot Burrapee broke a spinnaker-pole and twice had spinnaker itself carried away.

Expected grief with spinnaker-poles stood the 27-foot sloop Common Sense in good stead, on the trans-Pacific race, when the vessel met a savage squall which snapped her mast fifteen feet above deck. Her skipper, Frank Ekman, and his two companions, lashed several spinnaker-poles to the stump and managed to sail the rest of the way to the Territory, 1500 miles.

While the true lover of wind and wave will go to unlimited trouble to avert such mishaps, he takes his share with good grace. Teeth-grashing and caustic words can't restore strength to broken wood or torn sailcloth.

ONE of the sea's many fine old traditions offers a solution to the problem of being becalmed. Ancient mariners used to pace the decks where hot sun was making the tar bubble between planks. They would eye the slack sails and the placid sea. Then they would step over to a mast, reach up to a likely spot on the mast, and scratch, even in the manner of a land-lubber scratching the ear of his favorite bird dog.

While scratching, the ancient mariners would whistle.

It was supposed to be a sure cure for dead air, and modern yachtsmen who believe in such myths have been known to wear away fingernails and cramp their cheeks, scratching and whistling for a blow.

Most yachtsmen regard the California-Honolulu race as the world's major periodic yachting event, with an only rival in the New York to Bermuda race. The latter is regarded as an easier test of yachting skill, where the course lies practically along the coast.

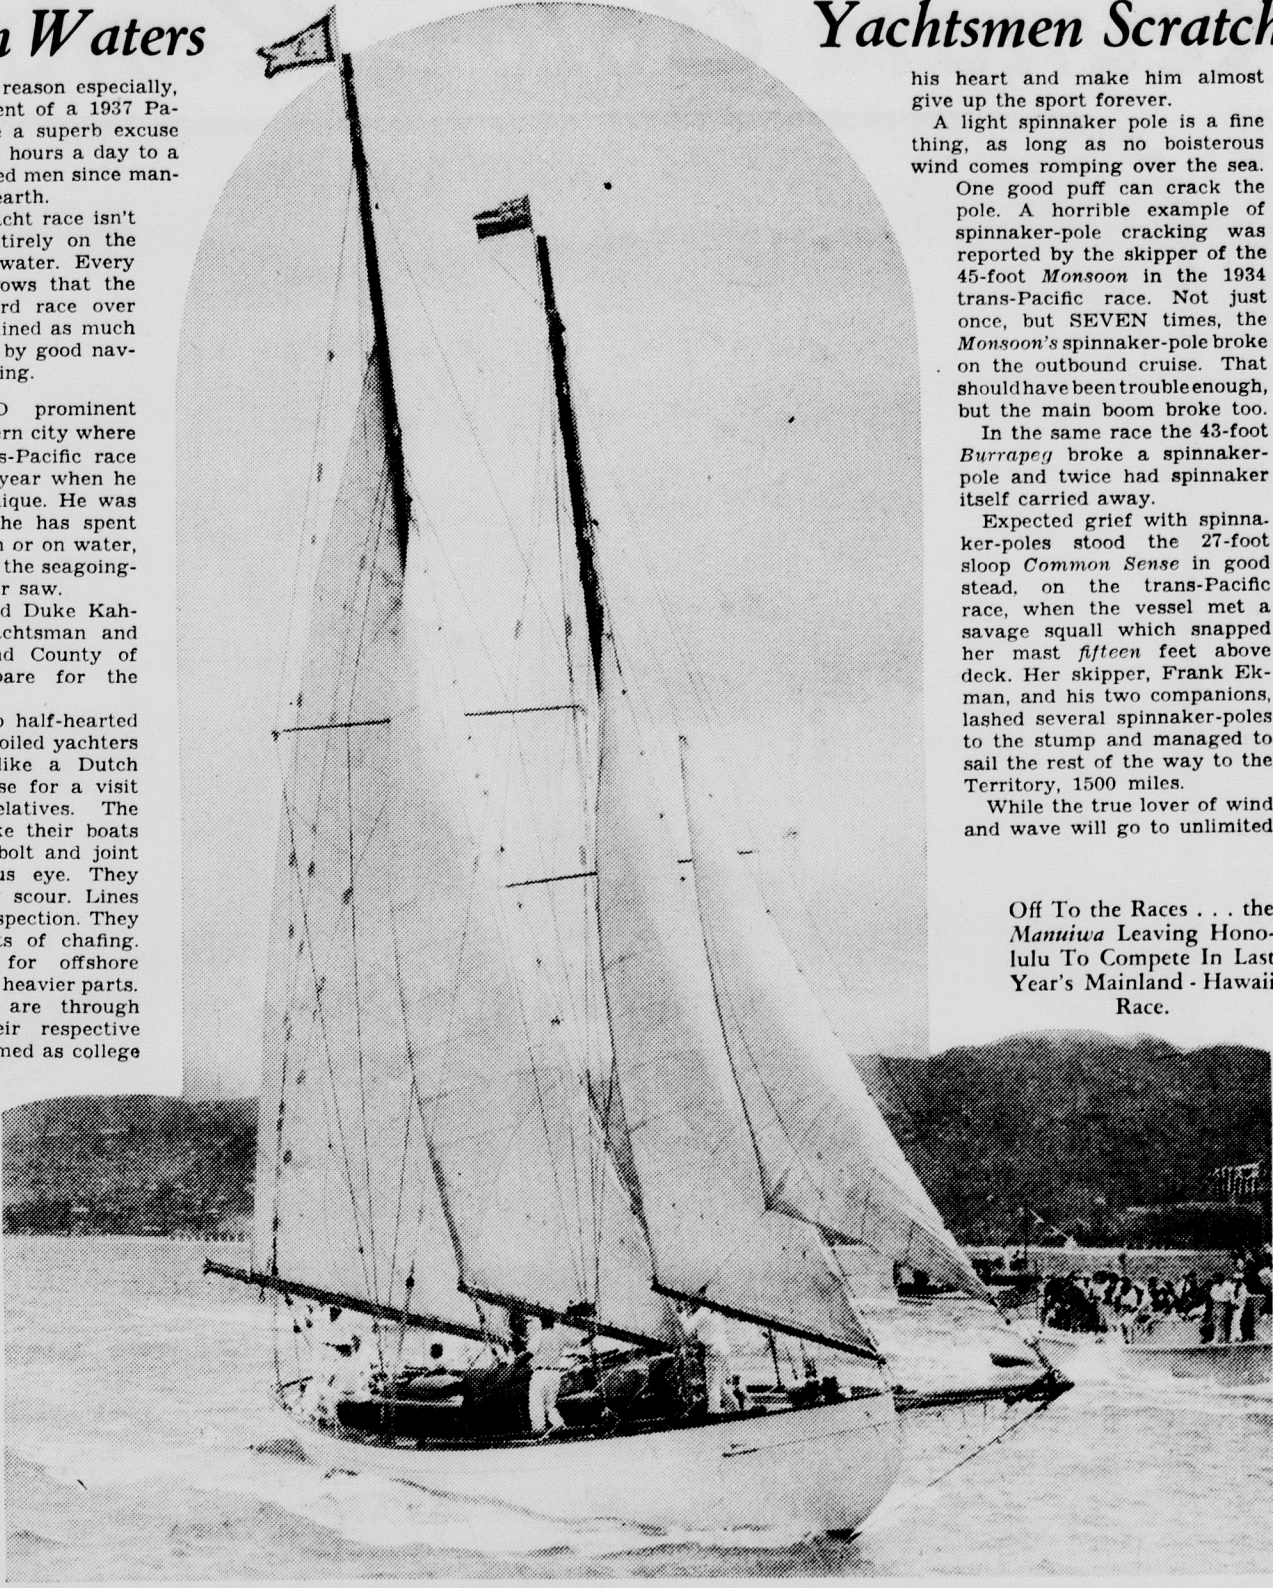

Long though it is, the race between America's western mainland and island Territory is by no means the longest yacht race of record.

In 1931, the New York Cruising Club sponsored a 2900 mile run from New York to Spain. In 1935 there was the race from Newport, R. I. to Oslo, Norway, a long course over the cold North Atlantic. And back in 1925 there was the successful race from San Francisco to Papeete, Tahiti, a 3687-mile contest won in a few hours more than 20 days by the Mariner, owned by L. A. Norris. The Mariner, incidentally, had established a yacht record for the mainland-Honolulu course in 1923 which was still standing last year. The starting point, in the 1923 race, was Santa Barbara.

Because the mainland-island race is a handicap, big yachts and little compete for the biennial championship. Rules require seaworthy skippers as well as seaworthy craft.

The smallest yacht which ever made the race was the 27½-foot Common Sense, which took a battering in a storm. The largest was five times as long, the Enchantress, 136 feet over all with a 100-foot waterline. When one of the biennial races gets under way, with yachts of all sizes pulling out to sea, the sight is a sea-going version of the Oklahoma Land Rush where some rushers rode ponies and some drove fancy carriages.

Whether or not there will be a change in the schedule of the mainland-island race, skippers far and wide in American waters are rejoicing this Summer in local races. Along the mainland and in the yacht basins of the Territory of Hawaii, the cry of "All hands rise and shine!" already has opened the sailing season. Boat-builders are busy and harbor breezes bring pungent messages of oakum, kerosene, canned beans boiling in the galley, and fresh yacht-green paint.
